Nye Says Navy Program Is Not Restricted to Defensive War

Sees 'Warfare Thousands of Miles Away From Home'

ATTACKS MEASURE

President's Statement Encourages Bill's Backers

Washington — (AP) — Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the naval committee told the senate today that a combination of Germany and Japan, or Russia and Japan could attack and destroy the present United States navy.

Walsh made this statement in support of the bill to provide a 20 per cent increase in the navy by spending $1,156,546,000.

Senators Nye (R-N. D.) and Lundeen (F.L.-Minn.) had been attacking the "super-navy" proposal.

Washington — (AP)—Senator Nye (R-N. D.) denounced the $1,156,546,000 naval expansion program today as "emphatically" not "preparation to defend ourselves" but "to carry on aggressively in warfare thousands of miles away from home."

Taking the floor to oppose enactment of the expansion bill, Nye told the senate there "is not any group of foes that might be conceived today that could afford leaving their front yards and their back yards long enough even to threaten an encroachment on our territory."

Likewise, he contended, the nation need have no fear of an invasion of South America.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) interrupted Nye to read from a speech by Secretary of War Woodring at Miami on March 15, in which the secretary said the nation was "better prepared" than at any previous time for "whatever may happen."

President's Stand

Nye declared there was likelihood that in event of war we would have to defend ourselves against the war materials sold by American firms to other countries.

"The chances are," he said, "that the Japanese planes which bombed the Panay a few weeks ago were using gasoline sold to them by an American corporation which had to have gunboats to protect its tankers."

(The American gunboat Panay was sunk by Japanese aircraft while accompanying Standard Oil tankers up the Yangtze river in China.)

Without naming the corporation, Nye said it was supplying oil and gasoline to both sides in the Sino-Japanese conflict under a contract to keep "the amount on hand at a certain level every hour of every day."

Nye recommended also that congress place military training in schools and colleges on a voluntary instead of compulsory basis and forbid sale of implements of war to any nation, whether in peace or war.

President Roosevelt's reiteration of his belief in "peaceful negotiations" strengthened the arguments of his senate lieutenants today that the $1,156,000,000 naval expansion program could not be considered as warlike.

Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference yesterday that this government viewed "with sympathetic interest" the new accord reached by Britain and Italy. He refrained, however, from any references to the political conditions which impelled it.

The United States, the president said, "believes in the promotion of world peace through the friendly solution by peaceful negotiation between nations of controversies which may arise between them."

He said the White House had given no opinion on the wisdom of a proposal by Representative Scott (D-Calif.) to have the state department issue a list formally naming international treaty violators. Scott's goal was reported to be an unofficial boycott of Italy, Germany and Japan.

Compares Plan With Others

The international note ran through senate discussions of the house-approved bill to authorize an increase of 20 per cent in the navy's strength.

"This program looks large when you consider it by itself," Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the naval committee told reporters, "but when you compare our position with that of other nations it is very meager."

Mayor Advises Careful Spending; New Council Fills Appointive Jobs

What Council Did:

Heard Mayor Goodland make recommendations for the new year.

Made the following appointments:

Dr. John C. Troxel, city physician.

George E. Gauslin, plumbing inspector.

F. A. W. Hammond, relief director.

Joseph A. Hodgins, sealer of weights and measures.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harth, city home keepers.

Alex Robodeau, weighmaster.

Frank Vanden Boogaard, city hall janitor.

Elected George Brautigam president of the council.

Confirmed Mayor's committee appointments. (Story on page 10.)

Authorized installation of a number of catchbasins, sewers and sidewalks.

A flip of the coin returned Dr. John C. Troxel to the combined offices of city physician and health officer last night when the council became deadlocked on his appointment after four formal ballots.

The new council elected George Brautigam its president and confirmed the mayor's committee appointments. Alderman Brautigam was named after three formal ballots. On the first, Alderman Brautigam and VanderHeyden each received five votes and Alderman Steinhauer received two. The next ballot gave Alderman Brautigam six and the third ballot gave him seven votes against five for Alderman VanderHeyden.

Preceding Dr. Troxel's election, a resolution, introduced by Alderman Keller, outlining the duties of the physician was adopted. The resolution stipulates that the physician

Goodland

Suggesting several important departmental changes and pleading for more cooperation between departments, boards, commissions and the council, Mayor Goodland advised careful spending during the new year to keep within the 1938 budget in his address to the new council, which was seated last night.

"Financially Appleton is in fine shape," the mayor said. "If the council lives up to its present budget the city should finish the year in the same condition. The city's bonded debt is only 59 per cent of the limit while other cities in the valley are borrowed up to their limits. I want to keep taxes down so that property owners can pay them. Don't do everything everyone wants. Learn to say no to some of these requests."

Contending that all big concerns have purchasing agents, the mayor suggested that the council centralize city buying in the comptroller, a job now held by Carl J. Becher, city clerk.

Hits Consolidation

The mayor asked the council to repeal the ordinance consolidating the posts of city engineer, building inspector and street commissioner. He said the taxpayers would get more for their money and the departments would be operated more efficiently if the departments were split.

The condition of resurfacing material on College avenue was mentioned by the mayor who stated that everything was being done by the board of public works to insure replacement of the worn surface.

Union Halts Campaign to Collect Dues

U. A. W. International Officers Decide to End Picket Lines

STRIFE IN DETROIT

Policemen Use Nightsticks To Break Up 25-Man Strike Group

Detroit — (AP) — A labor dispute over a United Automobile Workers' dues collecting drive at Flint seemed settled, at least temporarily, today by the decision of U. A. W. international officers to discontinue morning picket lines, but there was a flurry of violence in Detroit where U. A. W. strikers kept five factories closed.

The Detroit skirmish was at the Michigan Steel Castings company, where 16 policemen, with flying nightsticks, broke up a 25-man picket line led by an unidentified man in football headgear. Twenty-five workers entered the plant and the management announced operations were resumed on a curtailed schedule after two days of idleness caused by a strike against a 10 per cent pay cut.

In the Flint dispute, which has kept 5,250 Fisher and Buick Motor company employes idle for three days, Homer Martin, international president of the U. A. W., yielded to an ultimatum of William S. Knudsen, General Motors president. Knudsen said Fisher Body Plant No. 1 would remain closed until the union desisted from its attempt to collect dues by picket lines. He described the picketing as an attempt to force a closed shop, in violation of the U. A. W.-G. M. agreement.

Halts Picketing

Martin said the picketing would be discontinued in order to give General Motors "no excuse to close plants and throw thousands out of work." In Flint, however, Henry Wilson, president of the U. A. W. Fisher local, said that "membership checks" would be made as employes leave the plant and indicated an effort might be made to keep non-union workers in the plant.

George C. Paterson, resident Fisher manager at Flint, instructed the 3,750 employes of Fisher Plant No. 1 to return to work Thursday morning, but gave warning the plant would be closed for the fourth successive day if pickets reappeared.

Factories closed in Detroit by strikes included three plants of the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corp. employing 175 men; the Detroit Moulding corp., with 500 workers, and the American Brass Corp., which notified its 750 employes yesterday afternoon that it was closing indefinitely because power house employes shut off power in a dispute over a 10 per cent wage cut.

Group Urges Adoption of Senate Plan

Thinks Tax Proposals 'Exceedingly Helpful' in Making Jobs

BACKS FLAT RATES

Unemployment Committee Also Gives Data On Relief Costs

Washington—(AP)—The senate unemployment committee reported today enactment of senate-approved corporation income and capital gains taxes would be "exceedingly helpful" in making jobs for the nation's 12,000,000 and more unemployed.

At the same time, the committee reported that relief expenditures for 1933-37 aggregated $19,300,000,000, of which $14,200,000,000 came from the federal treasury and $5,100,000,000 from state and local sources.

The senate-approved taxes, imposing flat rates on corporation income and capital gains, have been approved by business and condemned by the administration.

President Roosevelt has indorsed the house-approved tax bill, which would continue in modified form the present undistributed profits tax on corporations and would provide a sliding scale of rates on capital gains.

The unemployment committee, headed by Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.), reported:

No Simple Problem

"The committee is of the opinion that the enactment of revenue legislation along the lines contained in the senate bill will be exceedingly helpful at this time.

"The committee, however, does not believe that the permanent solution of the unemployment problem is quite so simple, and therefore, intends to pursue its inquiry in the hope that as a result of further study under more normal conditions, it can make recommendations broader in scope."

Proponents of the senate tax bill immediately seized upon the report as ammunition for arguments in behalf of the measure.

A joint conference committee seeking to adjust differences between the house and senate measures has become deadlocked, and yesterday recessed until Friday.

The unemployment committee, which held lengthy hearings earlier this year, reported that representatives of major industries made only one specific recommendation—that congress either repeal or modify the existing undistributed profits tax and modify the capital gains levy.

President Tries to Help Utility Firms Provide More Jobs

New Yorker Raps Lobby Probers at Senate Hearing

Calls Conduct of Investigation 'Nothing Short Of Disgraceful'

Washington—(AP)—Sumner Gerard of New York exchanged fiery words with senate lobby investigators today, terming the conduct of their investigation "nothing short of disgraceful."

The peppery, white-haired treasurer of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government leaped to his feet while testifying before the senate committee and asserted the investigators had attempted to "besmirch" his organization.

Chairman Minton (D-Ind.) broke up the ensuing confusion by bluntly telling Gerard to "sit down."

The clash was precipitated when Senator Schwellenbach (D-Wash.) shouted at the witness that the national committee had "put in charge of your New York office a man who is an ex-convict and then turned the committee's money over to a man you never have seen."

"I take exception to that," he shouted angrily when Schwellenbach spoke of an "ex-convict."

"You got Dr. Rumely down here to smear us," he declared. Several weeks ago Dr. Edward A. Rumely, national committee secretary, refused to give records in response to a senate subpena.

Wartime Trial

At that time the senate committee quizzed him about a wartime conviction under the "treading with the enemy" act — from which he subsequently received a presidential pardon.

Schwellenbach asked Gerard, who was called to testify at the lobby committee's investigation of lobbying activities on the defeated executive reorganization bill, if he knew that Dr. Rumely received $1,500,000 from the German government during the war and "concealed" that information from the United States government.

When Gerard started to assert that the jury which indicted Dr. Rumely later testified that evidence was suppressed, Schwellenbach interrupted to ask if the witness had read a decision of the circuit court of appeals.

Gerard replied that he had not, and Schwellenbach said bluntly, "if you haven't read the decision of the circuit court of appeals, the committee doesn't care to hear any extraneous matter from you."

"The people are entitled to know what happened," Gerard snapped, rising to his feet and shaking a forefinger at Schwellenbach. "Every one of the jurors said that if evidence had not been suppressed Dr. Rumely would not have been indicted."

OUTLINES PLAN

Paris — (AP) — Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet (above) today presented to the cabinet an outline of his plans for strengthening France's international position, which authoritative quarters believe include an effort for closer collaboration between Paris, Washington and London.

The cabinet, meeting with President Albert Lebrun, devoted most of its session to the Daladier government's revitalized foreign policy, chiefly to the negotiations for a Franco-Italian friendship accord.

Loyalists Halt Fascist Advance In Tortosa Area

Insurgents Continue Drive Southward Along Mediterranean

Hendaye, France, at the Spanish Frontier —(AP)— Unable to crack at once a well-placed government defense at Tortosa, Spanish insurgents today drove southward along the Mediterranean coast toward Castellon and Valencia.

General Miguel Aranda's troops neared the outskirts of Alcala de Chivert where a secondary feeder road from Albocacer joins the coastal highway, after advancing 12 miles along an 18-mile front.

The new offensive threatened the chief coastal cities of southern government Spain.

At Alcala de Chivert, the insurgents had covered almost half the 40 miles from Vinaroz to Castellon and almost a quarter of the 83 miles from Vinaroz to Valencia.

(Advices from Madrid said the southern movement was checked.)

Government militia, posted strongly on the left bank of the Ebro river at Tortosa, yesterday halted the insurgent advance on Barcelona from the south.

Studies Ways to Offer U. S. Aid in Financing Projects

RELIEF LOAD GROWS

Hopkins Expects Larger Roll During Next Fiscal Year

Washington—(AP)— President Roosevelt, expanding his recovery drive on still another front, discussed with fiscal advisers today how private utilities could be helped to finance new construction and provide jobs.

He took up the question at a White House conference. Just before he did so Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, indicated in testimony at the capitol that he was preparing to increase the relief load during the first seven months of the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

Appearing before the house appropriations committee to tell how he proposed to use $1,250,000,000 of relief funds requested by the president, Hopkins said this sum would be sufficient to care for 2,800,000 persons until Feb. 1, 1939, or 200,000 more than are now on the rolls.

Roosevelt at Conference

The subject of new construction by private utilities was explored by Mr. Roosevelt in a conference with Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, William O. Douglas, chairman of the securities commission, and John W. Hanes, member of the S. E. C.

Jones said the R. F. C. under new power granted by congress could assist the utilities through loans or purchase of their bonds after the S. E. C. had approved the issues. The R. F. C. would not buy their stock, however, he said.

While Jones and his companions were with the president, White House aids announced that Mr. Roosevelt had approved low rent housing and slum clearance projects which will cost an estimated $40,728,825.

This construction will be carried out under the United States Housing authority which originally was authorized to issue up to $500,000,000 in bonds to raise the needed money. Last week in his recovery-relief message to congress, Mr. Roosevelt asked that this fund-raising power be expanded by $300,000,000.

Gold Credit Question

Two other developments were outstanding in the administration's rush to get the recovery and relief program under way without delay.

Treasury and federal reserve board executives were called together to decide how fast they should pump the $1,400,000,000 desterilized gold credit into the lendable resources of the nation's banks.

At Detroit an informed person said Henry Ford would discuss business conditions with President Roosevelt April 27.

Ford, who has opposed various New Deal policies, was said to have accepted an invitation tendered through G. Hall Roosevelt, the president's brother-in-law. The automobile manufacturer will be in Washington late this week as a guest at the convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

In the absence of word from the White House, it was generally assumed that Ford's conference was one of a long series which Mr. Roosevelt has arranged for the next two weeks. The president told reporters the talks were designed to get the huge lending-spending program under way as quickly as possible.

Officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, securities commission, and public works administration were called to the White House today for the first of the conferences.

In announcing this meeting, White House aids said the president would send to congress Thursday

Jackie's Mother Denies Earnings Totaled 4 Million

Says They Amounted to $1,300,000 and Remaining Property Is Hers

Los Angeles—(AP)—Jackie Coogan, highest-salaried child actor of the silent movies, was challenged today by his mother, Mrs. Lillian Coogan Bernstein, on his claim that he earned $4,000,000 before he reached legal age two years ago.

Mrs. Bernstein, resisting her son's suit for an accounting of his estate on the ground no such estate exists, filed an affidavit stating Jackie's earnings amounted to only $1,300,000. She contends that whatever money and property remain are hers under the California law that gives a minor's salary to his parents.

Marshalling evidence for his claim that a trust fund was created for him by his father, the late John R. Coogan, Jackie disclosed that his attorneys had found two legal documents in the hall of records here that purportedly showed such a trust was contemplated.

Petition Dismissed

William Rains, Jackie's counsel, said the actor's parents in January, 1923, obtained from the court a dismissal of a petition for guardianship on the rounds they anticipated "the creation of a trust for the investment and preservation" of Jackie's estate.

In the elder Coogan's probated will Jackie was not mentioned. Everything was left to the young

Death Threats are Sent to 2 Jurors

Sheriff Tells Judge of Notes to Women Members

Milwaukee—(AP)—Sheriff Edward Mitten informed Municipal Judge Max Nohl today that death threats had been sent to two women jurors trying Arthur Wick, 27, on a charge of assault with intent to kill Detectective Raymond Carlson.

Mitten said a letter had been mailed to Mrs. Cora Holzmann, one of the nine women on the jury, saying: "You back out of the jury. If my pal is found guilty, you will get your head blown off. Be smart."

The letter, the sheriff said, was in the same handwriting as a similar threat sent to Mrs. Julia Krygier, also a juror.

The jurors do not know of the threats. They were received at the jurors' homes.

Wick took the stand in his own behalf today to testify he had feared he would be killed by a policeman some day.

The prosecution rested late yesterday after introducing transcriptions of confessions attributed to Wick.

Mrs. Krygier told a woman deputy that she was ill and unable to continue hearing testimony, and the court recessed until afternoon.

WALTER M. SMITH DIES

Madison—(AP)—Walter M. Smith, 68, former University of Wisconsin librarian, died today in Clearwater, Fla., friends were advised here.

Labor Federation in National Politics

Washington —(AP)— The American Federation of Labor, following the example of the rival CIO entered politics on a national scale today by forming an organization to back selected candidates for public office.

The action, emphasizing anew the split between the two labor associations, indicated that the labor vote will be divided in many state primaries and November congressional elections.

William Green, A.F. of L. president, said the federation might support some candidates who also were approved by the CIO, but ordinarily, he added, CIO backing would be "one thing against a candidate."

Green's disclosure of the new organization followed his recent demands that federation members withdraw from labor's non-partisan league, the political branch of the CIO. The league was formed in 1936 to support President Roosevelt's candidacy for reelection.

Minority Hits at Wage-Hour Bill

Measure Is 'Arbitrary and Discriminatory,' Report Says

Washington —(AP)— A minority of the house labor committee, criticizing the revised wage-hour bill as "arbitrary and discriminatory," predicted today the supreme court would invalidate it if it became law.

Representative Ramepeck (D-Ga.) issued the dissenting report.

The new measure would provide for a graduated minimum wage starting at 25 cents an hour and increasing to 40 cents at the end of three years. Work hours would drop from 44 to 40 a week in two years.

The Ramspeck report said that while it may be contended the revised bill is not discriminatory because it provides for uniform wages and hours, "when these figures are translated into actual wages in terms of what the dollars will buy, it will be found that the proposal does not provide uniformity in that respect.

"The bill favored by the majority delegates the right to the secretary of labor to determine what industries shall be affected, which seems to be an unwise if not actually an illegal delegation to a single officer in the executive branch of the government. . . ."

Nationalists May Show Hand Again in Rumania

Bucharest—(AP)—Rumania's nationalists, who pattern their social and political movement after fascism, may show their hand again within two months.

Their leader, Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, is in jail for six months and hundreds of his colleagues have been arrested because the government discovered a plot to capture King Carol and set up a fascist state.

Persons close to Codreanu hinted today, however, that the tiny cells of his organization — principally youth groups of 10 to 20 members each—already had been given instructions about their activities during this "interim of the eclipse."

These orders, it was said were to remain outwardly quiet for two months, while continuing secret man to man membership recruiting.

Franco-Italian Talks May Lead to New Pact

Rome —(AP)— French-Italian conversations are expected tomorrow to go into details of an understanding for peace, advancing another step toward what eventually may become a five-power pact to keep Europe out of war.

Instructions for proceeding with the talks were expected from today's French cabinet meeting, to be given to charge d'affaires Jules Blondel.

Blondel will carry on the negotiations, which it is believed will be completed before France sends a new ambassador here—accredited to King Vittorio Emanuele as emperor of Ethiopia.

There is hope, both in Italian and French circles, that the negotiations will be completed before the Geneva league meeting early in May. (The Spanish government has requested the league council to consider foreign intervention in Spain, an important point in the current negotiations.)

Werner Exonerates Man of Fraud Charge

Madison—(AP)— Lawrence W. Hull was exonerated by Circuit Judge Edgar Werner late yesterday of charges he obtained money under false pretenses from Dane county by falsifying claims filed with the highway department for rental of trucks.

The judge dismissed the charges upon motion of Hull's attorney, William J. McCauley, of Milwaukee. He told Assistant District Attorney Elliot N. Walstead the prosecution had a "very weak case."

Charges against Hull, a truck salesman, were filed nearly two years ago and highlighted an investigation of the highway department.

Hit-Run Accident Victim Succumbs

Loomis Peters, 31, Oneida, Injured March 27, Dies At Green Bay

Loomis Peters, 31, route 1, Oneida, who was injured March 27 by a hit-and-run driver on Highway 54 between Oneida and Seymour, died early last evening at St. Vincent's hospital, Green Bay.

Peters was found lying near the roadside by a passing motorist and death was caused by complications which followed amputation of an injured leg. It is believed that he had been lying near the road more than an hour before being found.

District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr, who has been investigating the accident said today that an inquest will be called. The death of the Oneida man is the third traffic fatality in Outagamie county since Jan. 1.

Survivors are the mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. George Webster, Oneida; two brothers, Daniel and Finley Peters, Oneida; two sisters, the Misses Jane and Hannah Peters, Oneida; one half-brother, Nelson Webster, Oneida; and one half-sister, Miss Clara Webster, Oneida.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the Episcopal Mission church, Oneida, with the Rev. William Christian in charge. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Purge of Collective Farmers Ends in Russia

Moscow —(AP)— The soviet purge of collective farmers was ordered stopped today.

An order signed by Joseph Stalin, as secretary of the central committee of the communist party, and Vyacheslaff Molotoff, chairman of the council of people's commissars, declared much harm had been done by mass expulsions of peasants from farms for trivial reasons on the pretext of purging the farms of hostile elements.

The communist leaders accused provincial officials of bureaucratic high-handedness and warned them they would be tried as criminals unless unwarranted expulsions cease.

Ousting of peasants from collective farms means starvation, the order said, adding that such action only created hostility to the soviet regime.

'Dry' Night Club Owner Asks Police Protection

Milwaukee—(AP)—Bernard Glisch, proprietor of Milwaukee's liquorless night club, appealed to Chief of Police Joseph Kluchesky for a special protection detail when the club opens its doors Saturday night.

Declaring hoodlums had thrown blocks of wood through upper windows of the new Club Sahara, Glisch wrote the chief:

"I have been informed that a concerted effort will be made Saturday night by a non-law abiding element to mar the opening by putting us in a bad light with the police authorities and the public. The plan, according to our information, is for several persons to bring liquor to the club against the policy of our orders."

Would Penalize Resigned Officer Under Postal Law

Washington —(AP)— Representative Church (R-Ill.) suggested today that Horace Russell, resigned general counsel of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, be assessed $300 for each letter he sent out announcing the legal services of a former HOLC association.

Russell quit his high-ranking post yesterday after Church told the house the attorney had solicited business for O. B. Taylor, former HOLC lawyer now practicing in Washington.

Church declared the letters had gone out free of postage under a government frank, and asserted they provided "personal advertisement at the taxpayer's expense." The number of letters was not disclosed.

"It is clearly a violation of the franking law," he added, declaring it to be the duty now of the postmaster general and the attorney general to collect the $300 penalty on each letter distributed.

Levine Offers Rewards For Recovery of Body

New York —(AP)— Murray Levine took formal cognizance of a possibility that his kidnaped son may be dead today by offering $5,000 for "information which will lead to the recovery of his body." The boy disappeared eight weeks ago.

At the same time, he clung to a hope that the missing boy still may be alive by offering $25,000 for information which would lead to his recovery.

Weyauwega Girl Finds 'Good Citizen' Pilgrimage to Capital 'Lots of Fun'

Washington — (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Verna Haire, Wisconsin's "good citizenship" pilgrim to the D. A. R. convention, rode on a pullman sleeper for the first time last week and found it "lots of fun."

"I tried to keep awake so I wouldn't miss anything," she laughed.

The Weyauwega High school girl was one of 49 girls representing the 48 states and the District of Columbia selected for good citizenship honors by the D. A. R. All were quartered at a hotel under the supervision of chaperones.

Their day began at 6:45 a. m. and usually ended about 1:30 a. m. The program included a daily sightseeing trips around Washington, tea with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House and numerous luncheons and dinners.

The girls visited George Washington's home at Mount Vernon, the national capitol, the Smithsonian institution, the botanical gardens and the new supreme court building.

Verna, who lives on a farm on the outskirts of Weyauwega, said she found Washington "an awfully big city and awfully impressive."

The two most impressive sights of the city, she thought, were the Lincoln memorial and the tomb of the unknown soldier. She went up in the 500-foot Washington monument, the highest she had ever been in her life, and said "it made my ears hum."

The girls visited the tomb of the unknown soldier on Sunday after attending Easter services at St.

Abandon Hope Carnegie Heir Is Still Living

New York— (AP)— Relatives and friends of Andrew Carnegie Whitfield, missing society aviator, virtually abandoned hope today that he would be found alive.

Despite persistent but unconfirmed reports he had been seen Saturday, they expressed belief the handsome young nephew of the late Andrew Carnegie, steel king, had crashed during a solo flight in his private plane last Friday.

John H. Whitfield, his brother, said the missing man's wife feared her husband had met with a serious or fatal accident while landing in some isolated region.

Central Chinese Army Driven Back In Major Battles

Jap Capture of Lini Clears Way for Reorganized Drive

Shanghai —(AP)— A driving Japanese offensive today thrust back the central China army in two major battles along the 50-mile front in southern Shantung province.

The offensive checked optimism Chinese had shown with their victory at Taierhchwang, and it appeared they were making a last stand in the province,—more than three-fourths of its 56,000 square miles nominally under Japanese control.

The two battles were along the Lini front with its willow and mulberry bordered Yi river and at Hanchwang, southwest tip of the front. Japanese said they captured Lini and Chinese admitted loss of Hanchwang.

In the triangular area about Lini and Hanchwang, fringing the Kiangsu province border, the battleground was small fields of tobacco, peanuts, beans.

Japanese capture of Lini put them in position for a reorganized drive against the vital Lunghai railway, China's east-west trunk line.

Aerial Bombing

The intensity of the Japanese offensive indicated Lini was subjected to two days of aerial bombing and constant artillery shelling before the final infantry assault.

The Japanese said this incessant pounding shattered one corner of the walls, enabling troops to fight their way by hand to the top and pour a heavy fire upon the Chinese defenders below.

Chinese had reported a force of 60,000 marching for the attack on Lini, a short time before Japanese announcement of its capture. The Chinese admitted they retreated from Hanchwang before an overwhelming Japanese attack during the night. Chinese had claimed its capture only yesterday.

Try to Rescue Force

The Japanese offensive was designed to utilize Lini as the base for a quick drive to rescue a Japanese force, barricaded in nearby Yihsien and under repeated assaults by Chinese.

There was continuous fighting at Yihsien and along the entire front.

The Lini victory was hailed as avenging in part the Japanese defeat at Taierhchwang, but foreign observers believed all Japanese preparations were not yet complete to permit the offensive to swing along in full force.

When the Japanese are ready again to seek control of the Lunghai, there may then be the biggest battle of the war. Reinforcements and supplies are being brought in from Tsingtao, Shantung seaport, and Chinese likewise are bringing up new armies.

Guerrilla warfare choked the first drive against the Lunghai, and this time Japanese are seeking to widen the offensive sufficiently to prevent disruption of communications by the wide-circling Chinese guerrilla units.

man's mother. Jackie said he would "leave no stone unturned in my search for a later will which I am sure was written by my father."

Four days after Judge James C. Rives dismissed the Coogans' petition of guardianship, in 1923, Jackie received the largest check written, up to that time, in favor of an actor. The check was signed by Joseph M. Schenck, and was for $500,000, an advance on a $1,000,000 contract calling for four pictures by Jackie over a two-year period.

Denies Misconduct

"I recall endorsing that check," said Jackie. "It was impressed upon me that I was to be a good boy and earn that money.

"Regardless of what my mother said about me being a bad boy, I don't think my conduct warrants my being cut off without any money.

"I flunked out at Santa Clara university, but dad did the same when he was my age. Once, I went home drunk and mother was terribly upset. I promised I wouldn't drink again. I went to church and made a pledge and I have never broken it to this day, not even to a glass of beer."

Mrs. Bernstein, in her affidavit, said said she and her deceased husband contributed immeasurably to Jackie's success as a child actor; that his earnings never were squandered; that she always has given her son her love and affection, and is still willing to make him such gifts as appear to her to be proper.

Goodland Advises Careful Spending During New Year

Tests are being made and when they are completed, the board will report to the council, he said.

Remodeling of Lincoln grade school was suggested as a work project for the new year. The building will be turned over to the city by the school board when the new high school is opened, the mayor said.

Becher

Widening of Lawrence and Elm streets to relieve parking and traffic congestion in the business district was suggested as well as the opening of N. Division street to Washington street.

Truck Routes

Truck routes through the city were recommended by the mayor in his address. He said: "We have 35 miles of paved streets with about three million dollars invested. Why should we allow heavy trucks to destroy our roads? Other cities route trucks through the city on side streets.

The mayor objected to the use of the city's big trucks for work that could be done by smaller machines. He recommended that the big trucks be used only for heavy work and snow removal and that light trucks be purchased for other work. He said: "They're cheaper to buy, cheaper to run and you can do more work with them."

Monthly payment of taxes was discussed by the mayor. He said that this year he would attempt to work out some legal plan to bring about the installment plan. "Small taxpayers are not the only ones interested in the proposal," he said. "Many business men are interested and I would like to see it worked out."

Mayor Goodland reviewed last year's accomplishments and termed the new senior high school "the finiest in the middle west." He said taxpayers got their money's worth in the new sewage plant and expressed a desire to see some plan worked out so that industrial wastes may be treated to help clear up the river.

In closing the mayor said: "The coming year looks none to rosy. There are hundreds of men out of work in the city. Last year we had plenty of construction work in the valley to take up the slack while this year, there will be no large projects. The WPA helps some and we hope to put several projects through under the program. We don't know what Washinton has in store for us, but we hope to get our share."

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS

Washington —(AP)— The social security board reported applicants for social security account numbers totaled 38,237,877 through March 31. The cumulative total by states included: Michigan, 1,807,056; Wisconsin, 788,217.

CCC to Operate 1,501 Camps For Another Year as Result Of Added $50,000,000 Fund

Washington —(AP)— The civilian conservation corps will operate 1,501 camps for another year, Director Robert Fechner said today, as a result of congressional approval of an additional $50,000,000 appropriation.

"The new funds," Fechner said, "will mean that we do not have to cut off 301 camps as previously ordered, and that we can proceed with an uninterrupted program."

The extra money, requested by President Roosevelt in his new recovery program, was authorized by the senate yesterday. The house previously had voted for it.

Fechner estimated that more than one half the CCC appropriation, now increased to $276,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, will be spent on supplies, including food, clothes and equipment. The remainder will be distributed in wages to about 271,000 enrolled men.

31 Camps to be Moved

The camps, Fechner said, will be continued in their present locations with the exception of 31, which will be moved from army reservations to other sites.

Started slightly more than five years ago as Mr. Roosevelt's first recovery project, the CCC has given employment to approximately 2,200,000 persons at various times. When the president suggested the corps, he said he wanted to change disheartened, hopeless youths into self-supporting independent members of society.

During the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1937, Fecrner said, 3,799 enrollees obtained private jobs because of training received in camp.

What CCC Has Done

The national conservation program carried out by CCC has included the following: 1,255,262,000 forest trees planted; 64,231 miles of telephone line erected, 41,133 bridges constructed, 44,475 major type buildings completed, 3,982,720 erosion check dams built, 2,988,307 acres of forest lands improved, 16,722,021 acres cleared of plant diseases and pests, 120,310 miles of roads and trails built, 4,130,500 man-days spent fighting forest fires, and thousands of acres of forests and park lands improved for recreational use.

Of the $30 a month paid each enrollee, $25 has gone to aid dependents at home, Fechner said, estimating that perhaps 10,000,000 persons have been aided directly through the CCC programs.

A typical CCC camp has an enrolled strength of from 180 to 200 men. Although there are no military drills or regulations, reserve army officers have charge of the men except when they are at work. Then they are under control of a technical staff.

Under the educational program more than 65,000 boys have been taught to read and write, nearly 550,000 have been better grounded in elementary school subjects, and more than 350,000 have taken high school courses.

or Friday his message urging reciprocal taxation of future issues of government securities as well as salaries of public officers. Some officials have estimated about $140,000,000 of new revenue could be raised in this manner.

Chairman Taylor (D-Colo.) of the house appropriations committee said he hoped to have an omnibus recovery bill ready for house consideration by May 1. He added, however:

Many Want to Appear

"A lot of people want to be heard, and I don't know whether we can finish the hearings and committee work in that time."

Shortly before Hopkins appeared before the committee, Representative Snell (R-N. Y.), the minority floor leader, called the WPA chief the "real power behind the White House."

"His absence from the capital (during a long illness) closely coincided with the do-nothing period of the administration, when the do-nothing period of the administ Roosevelt depression was deepening," Snell said in a statement.

"His return marked the beginning of the era of feverish activity on the part of the New Deal. Since 'spending Harry' came back to town things have been moving."

The gold recovery between Secretary Morgenthau and the government bond experts of the federal reserve board was private, and no announcement was expected before evening.

Can Regulate Speed

Although the gold was desterilized last week by presidential order, the credit potentialities of the fund will not be effective until the treasury spends the money. The money can be spent rapidly by redeeming government securities, or more slowly by using it to help pay for governmental expenditures.

A combination of the two methods appeared probable.

Wholehearted support for the general recovery program was expressed by Representative Boileau (P-Wis.) who declared he believed that "other liberal members of the house feel as I do about it."

"If the administration shows signs of delaying PWA, housing and other building projects," Boileau said, "I would be inclined to offer an amendment to raise the relief appropriation from $1,250,000,000 to $2,000,000,000."

Republican Fight

Representative Maverick (D-Texas) leader of a group of Democratic liberals, told reporters that Mr. Roosevelt's lending and spending proposals constitute "the only thing the party can do" in view of the business slump and the increase in unemployment.

While these groups swung into line behind the program, Representative Bacon (R-N. Y.) prepared to start afresh the Republican fight to have administration of relief turned over to the states.

He proposed that the $1,250,000,000 relief allotment recommended by the president for the first seven months of the next fiscal year be used as grants-in-aid to the states. Each state would be required to put up a sum at least equivalent to 33 1-3 per cent of the amount it received from the federal government.

A fund of $100,000,000 would be set aside for use by the president to meet emergency relief needs. A three-man board would be created to handle allocation of the funds and see that they were not misspent.

Semmelhack Is Speaker At Rotary Club Meeting

Local Governments 'Only Instrument To Work on Common Problems': Phil

Portage, Wis.—(AP)—Local governments are "the only instrument with which we can go to work on common problems," Governor Philip LaFollette told the Wisconsin County Boards association meeting here yesterday.

The governor stressed the importance of strong local administrations, but said he "waged no war" on the state or national approach to general problems.

John Doerfler, Milwaukee county board member, urged the association to support a greater measure of "home rule" for the Milwaukee board. He said its problems were quite different from those of other county boards in the state.

Earlier in the first day's session A. J. Thelen, legislative representative of the county boards association, charged that at the present rate of spending the Wisconsin emergency board will have a third of its three million dollar emergency relief fund unexpected when the 1939 legislature convenes.

Thelen said the present average expenditure of $130,380 per month since October is inadequate for county relief needs.

Thelen's contention was challenged by Ernest Hoesly, (P-New Glarus,) who with Governor LaFollette and Senator Merwyn E. Rowlands, (P-Cambria) compose the emergency board.

Debate on the relief question grew out of charges by northern Wisconsin county board chairmen that the state welfare department has failed to repay 26 northern counties $26,000 for county debts incurred in relief during May and June, 1937.

R. W. Gustafson, chairman of the Ashland county board, who has led the fight to secure such repayment, contended that his county is nearly bankrupt as a result of the unpaid debts.

Planning Board Tries to Chart Growth of Wisconsin With Eye to Its Resources

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Overshadowed by the big state bureaus and commissions at the capitol are dozens of little agencies of the state government which get little attention from the public which supports them. Their activities aren't very exciting, their offices are tucked away in forgotten corners of the statehouse, and their personnel are not involved in state politics.

One of these is the state planning board which for several years has been putting Wisconsin and everything in it under the microscope. Its studies, although original and important, get only perfunctory notice in a capital which is more interested in other things.

But the planning board is Wisconsin's official board of prophecy. By peering into the social and economic development of Wisconsin in the past, and by carefully examining the state's resources and trends today, the board is charting the future of the commonwealth, its population, natural and social resources, industries and wealth.

General Objective

Created seven years ago and headed by Martin W. Torkelson, the board's general objective is an intelligent development of the state. Making the best of present needs and resources, the board's duties point the way to an orderly process of growth, a growth which will guarantee the welfare of today and tomorrow.

Because its work is of the kind that does not attract private research, its periodical reports are valuable and significant. Its first published volume, "The Wisconsin Regional Plan Report," is the most comprehensive collection of current materials on Wisconsin, its resources, its physical, social and economic background ever published.

In more recent studies the planning board drafted a conservation and recreation plan for southeastern Wisconsin which was promptly approved by the state legislature and is now being followed by the conservation department with legislative financial support. Further recreational studies for other sections of the state are contemplated.

Population Forecast

Perhaps the most interesting, and the most original, of the board's projects was the population forecast for Wisconsin which was recently published. Here is material of value to everyone connected with the governmental enterprise, for taxpayers, businessmen and farmers. After long months of statistical work, the board's experts produced detailed population forecasts for every county in Wisconsin, for every community of more than 5,000 population, and special reports for the larger cities.

Population growth during the next quarter of a century in Wisconsin will not be as great as in the past, the board concluded, for the state is rapidly approaching a population stability. Urban areas will gain more rapidly than, and in many instances at the expense of, the rural sections, and industrial cities will gain most of all. Most counties can expect some growth, but the probable increases vary greatly for different sections of the state. In general the eastern and south-eastern sections of the state will grow most rapidly during the next three decades, according to the board's forecasts.

Almost as important as these independent studies is the board's function of operating with local units of government in their planning projects. Today more than one third of Wisconsins counties have zoning ordinances which control land use, while most of the important cities have also taken steps for planned development of their areas

Zoning Ordinances

With the cooperation and assistance of the state board 26 counties already have adopted effective zoning ordinances to determine the areas within which agriculture, forestry, and recreation may be conducted, while four others are now being drafted, and three more are in preliminary stages of discussion.

Zoning and planning are being adopted both by the heavily industrialized and heavily populated counties, and the sparsely settled, poorer counties. Oneida county for example, which has a population of 15,899, more than half of which is represented by the city of Rhinelander, was the second county in the state to perfect a zoning plan. Milwaukee county was the first.

Oneida county's population, outside of Rhinelander, averages only six persons per square mile, Torkelson explains. There are some good farms in the county, but much sub-marginal land unfitted for farming. The problem of the county government was the isolated settler trying unsuccessfully to make a living on submarginal land, far from neighbors, and with resulting high costs for roads, schools and relief.

"So the Oneida county people, in order to meet their immediate problem, which was to prevent an increase in the high costs of roads, schools and relief, adopted an ordinance designed to prevent the further influx of more isolated settlers on sub-marginal lands," says Torkelson.

Cordinating the services of all of Wisconsin's vast governmental facilities, and employing economic and other experts, the planning board is studying Wisconsin present and past, and peeking into its future. On the basis of its reports, the people of Wisconsin through their state, local and county governments may prepare for what is ahead.

surgent efforts to lash pontoon bridges across the turbulent waters.

Insurgent General Garcia Valino's mixed Spanish and Italian regiments operating on the same front contented themselves for the most part with cleaning up the 625 square mile area behind them. It was their first chance to mop up, so rapid had been the advance since cutting through to the sea at Vinaroz.

Insurgent headquarters hailed the capture of this farming area as a distinct economic advantage. They said they had captured half the year's rice crop of the Ebro delta, the potato crop ready for harvest and the prospective year's crop of oranges and tomatoes for which the region is famous.

On the far north wing, commanded by General Solchaga, insurgents effectively plugged the French frontier along the Aran valley, preventing the further escape of trapped government militia and sympathizers. Insurgent advance guards held the towns controlling virtually the only passes into France.

Franco Cheered

In Zaragoza Generalissimo Francisco Franco was hailed by shouts of "el caudillo" (the chieftain) from a crowd of 10,000 when he proclaimed the civil war won by his insurgents and called upon the government to abandon the struggle.

Addressing the crowd with the insurgent watchword, "Arriba Espana!" (up, Spain), Franco referred to the government's determination to continue the war as "doubly criminal resistance." He promised pardon for those who now declare allegiance to insurgent Spain, but warned that future resistance "will be a new sin against you the day you confront our justice."

COIN DECIDES JOB

Dr. John C. Troxel, above, was reelected city physician and health officer by the flip of a coin at last night's council session. When the council remained deadlocked at six votes for Dr. Troxel and six for Dr. F. J. Huberty, another candidate for the post, Mayor Goodland asked that a coin be flipped to break the tie. The coin was flipped and Alderman Steinhauer called "heads" giving the job to Dr. Troxel.

shall take care of the medical and surgical needs of all indigents, inmates of the city home and police station; that he shall give first aid to all city officials and employes and conduct examinations for the fire and police departments.

Name Dr. Troxel

On the first formal ballot, Dr. Troxel was given five votes against six for Dr. F. J. Huberty, 114 E. Franklin street, and one for Dr. Milton Trautmann, Madison. On the next three ballots, Dr. Troxel and Dr. Huberty each were given six votes, the council indicating it was going to leave the choice of city physician to the mayor.

Brautigam

However, Mayor Goodland settled the tie by asking the city clerk for a coin which he gave to this reporter. When the coin was flipped, Alderman Steinhauer, one of the tellers, called 'heads' and Dr. Troxel was returned to office for another year. There were eight applications for the job.

George Gauslin was reelected plumbing inspector securing 10 votes on the first formal ballot. Ray E. Childs, 316 E. McKinley street, a candidate backed by the Association of Master Plumbers and Journeymen Plumbers, Local No. 458, received two votes.

F. A. W. Hammond, relief director, Alex Robodeau, weighmaster, Joseph A. Hodgins, sealer of weights and measures, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harth, city home keeper and matron, unanimously were reelected. All were unopposed.

Reelect Janitor

Frank Vanden Boogaard received eight votes on the first formal ballot and was renamed city hall janitor. Two votes were given to Herman Kositzke, 1509 N. Division street, one to Frank Ponschock, Spencer street, and one to Henry Frank, 822 W. Commercial street. Other applicants were John W. Felton, 551 N. Richmond street, Frank LaViolette, 802 W. Commercial street, and George Simon, 219 E. Spring street.

John Balliet, 109 S. Appleton street, was given the contract to write the city treasurer's bond for the next two years. The council stipulated that the commission must be divided between the following Appleton insurance men: Balliet, George Beckley, P. M. Conkey, Charles Huesemann, Joseph Koffend, George Lange, Ben Laird, W. E. Plaman, C. H. Schoof, D. P. Steinberg, John Stevens, Norman VanderHeyden, R. E. Carncross, P. A. Kornely and Edward Vaughn.

The city clerk was authorized to advertise for 50 manhole and catchbasin covers and 55 gallons of quick drying paint was ordered from the Carey Paint company at $1.57 per gallon.

Street Projects

Actions of the street and bridge committee on routine work were approved. Included were the installation of catchbasins and sidewalks in various sections of the city and five storm and sanitary sewer projects. The council also approved filling of the railrace near the Fox river Paper mill and authorized purchase of a 30-inch culvert to be placed under N. Island street at that point.

Keller

Charles M. Donnelly, Appleton, was employed as inspector for the Lawe and Packard street paving projects at a salary of $35 per week. The contract to furnish a carload of gasoline for the street department was given to L. L. Doerfler, 5 Bellaire court. His bid was 8.1 cents per gallon delivered without tax.

After the old council adjourned sine die, the new council decided to continue following the Roberts' rules of order in conducting meetings, with a few minor exceptions. Upon the suggestion of Alderman Keller, the rule regarding the purchase of supplies by committee and department heads will not be acted upon until some changes are considered.

Governor to Air Program of Jobs For Unemployed

Discusses Reorganization Of State Government In Radio Speech

Madison —(AP)— Governor Philip F. LaFollette told a radio audience Tuesday night the country has failed to meet the problems of the depression because "we have not done better thinking."

"If we are to have a program of action that will be really sound," he said, "we must first of all think it through together. This cannot be done in a moment. It will take time, patience and hard, but plain thinking. Sooner or later it must be done."

Governor LaFollette has been formulating a plan to attack the economic problems by putting the unemployed to useful and productive work but withheld the details until tomorrow night when he will deliver his second speech.

Will Announce Plans

He will speak again Thursday and Friday nights and has indicated he will climax the series with an announcement whether he will seek a fourth term for governor, run for the United States senate, of which his brother, Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., is a member or adopt some other political course.

In his first address the chief executive described how his administration has reorganized the state government with "comprehensive safeguards against autocratic use of the power" granted by the 1937 legislature. He made no reference to the Roosevelt reorganization bill, defeated by congress.

The governor cited instances of about 40 changes in which functions of one department have been shifted to another and characterized this job as one of "removing round pegs from square holes" and putting them where they belong.

Fear Autocratic Power

"Everyone, regardless of politics has long recognized the necessity for modernizing our government," he said. "But so many people are justly apprehensive of dictatorship that we have been reluctant to give one man the necessary power to get the job done for fear it might lead to arbitrary and autocratic abuse of that power."

He declared the Wisconsin legislature got around this by appointing a legislative committee, together with a committee of state officials to pass upon the recommendations of the governor and authorized the next legislature to override any changes by a simple majority vote of either house.

Gardner Dam Boasts Gaining Popularity As Weekend Retreat

Gardner Dam is fast gaining a reputation as one of the most popular weekend retreats in this area.

Since the winter conference Jan. 15-16, scouts and leaders from the valley council have been at the camp, located on the Wolf river in Langlade county 80 miles north of Appleton, every weekend. And scouts and scouters have reservations made for each weekend to May 30, Walter Dixon, executive, said today.

Scouters from Kaukauna and Menasha gathered at the camp last weekend. Next Saturday and Sunday a group of men from the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, headed by William E. County Farmers Receive Payment For Soil Program

Towns of Neenah-Menasha Conservationists Will Get Checks Thursday

Neenah — Towns of Neenah and Menasha farmers Thursday will receive their checks as payment for cooperating last season in the soil conservation program. The checks will be distributed at the Neenah city hall from 9 o'clock in the morning until 4 in the afternoon.

Winnebago county farmers who took part in the soil conservation program will receive payments totaling approximately $47,000 as their share of the 1937 federal soil conservation appropriation.

More than 200 farmers from the town of Vinland, Nekimi, Oshkosh, Black Wolf and Algoma received their checks Monday at the office of R. C. Heffernan, county agent, in the postoffice building. Tuesday farmers from Poygan, and Winneconne received their payments at the Winneconne village hall. Wolf river and Winchester farmers were to be paid at the Drew's tavern, Zittau today and Clayton farmers will receive their check along with towns of Neenah and Menasha, Thursday.

The final batch of this allotment will be distributed at the firemen's hall, Omro, on Friday to the farmers of Omro, Nepeuskun, Rishford and Utica.

County farmers will have received a total of 801 checks which will be about 55 per cent of the expected payments in the county on the 1937 program. The average payment this year will be slightly higher than last year, according to Otto Miller, chairman of the Winnebago county soil conservation committee. The average check this year totals $58, while the average payment last year was $51.

Storage Value of Vegetables Cut by Precooling Delays

Produce Cooled Rapidly Is Less Damaged by Transit Diseases

Fruit and vegetable farmers can grow top grade produce, but getting it to the consumer, which often necessitates cross-country shipments and keeping it in first class condition for a long period after arrival, is another problem.

Produce cooled rapidly to slightly above freezing ripens more slowly and is less damaged by transit diseases. This treatment, called precooling, was introduced by the United States Department of Agriculture a few years ago, according to information received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent. Now it is used widely in commercial fruit and vegetable areas.

Recent department studies show the practical effects of precooling. Two bushels of apples were gathered from the same tree in Oregon for shipment to New York. One bushel was placed in a refrigerator car and cooled rapidly by one of several methods, before starting the long trip. The other bushel was placed in another refrigerated car, but was not precooled. It probably did not reach the same low temperature as the first bushel until after 2 days or more.

Upon arrival in New York the two bushels of apples appeared much the same. But the precooled apples kept in good condition 20 days longer than those not precooled. Each day's delay in cooling apples from 70° to 32° cuts off about 10 days of potential storage life that no amount of later refrigeration can restore.

Foreign Purchases Limit Sales to Other Countries

To retain foreign markets for cotton, wheat and lard, students of foreign trade state that the United States must buy from those to whom is sells. Foreign sales of the country are limited by foreign purchases, according to Andrew W. Hopkins of the state college of agriculture.

If the foreign market for such products as cotton, wheat and lard is lost, the domestic dairy industry may look attractive to producers of cotton and some of these other products, and for this reason Outagamie county farmers should be interested in foreign trade, even though they do ont export their dairy products, R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent says.

Capital Limits Buying

The farmer's purchases are limited by the amount he has to spend, and unless he cuts in on his capital, the amount he has to spend depends upon his income and what he can borrow, according to I. R. Hedges and Don Anderson of the college of agriculture. If, however, he borrows to increase his purchases in one year, he must spend less than he otherwise could in the years when the borrowed money is repaid, they point out in reminding that what is true of an individual is equally true of a nation.

"During its early history, the United States was in debt to foreign nations because of having bought more from them than it sold to them while building its first railroads and factories. Later, when paying interest on past debts and making payments on principal, it was not possible to purchase from foreign nations as much as could be sold to them. Under these circumstances, it was desirable to have the so-called 'favorable balance' of trade, that is, sales in excess of purchases.

Position Changes

"After the World war, the country's position changed from that of a debtor to a creditor nation," Hedges and Anderson point out. "We not only paid our foreign debts but loaned goods and money abroad. But nations cannot continue indefinitely to buy on credit. If we are to continue to sell products abroad and to collect our debts we must be willing to take something in return. We might take gold, but there is slight probability that foreigners will purchase our goods with gold We already have a large part of the world's supply buried in a Kentucky hill, so the supply of foreign nations is limited. Furthermore, since we merely bury what gold we have there seems to be little reason for wanting more. The alternative is to take products or services.

"What products should we buy from abroad? Domestic producers object to low tariffs even though our own price on some articles may be several times the foreign purchase price. It is also distasteful for us to make use of foreign services. We are told that we must have a merchant marine even though foreigners can furnish ocean freight service cheaper than our own.

"Under these circumstances selling more than we buy is no longer a 'favorable balance' of trade for us—it is merely giving away some of our goods. An individual would not do that—why should a nation? Hence we come back to the old axiom, if we are to sell more abroad, we must buy more from abroad."

Air Pictures to Be Used to Map Outagamie Farms

Photograph Method Will Be Used to Check Land Under AAA Crop Program

Outagamie county farmers are scheduled to save $7,700 this year through aerial photography.

The Agricultural Adjustment administration has decided upon the airplane photograph method of making maps with which to check the owners of 646 square miles of Outagamie County farm lands on their compliance with AAA crop acreage quotas.

The AAA estimates the cost of aerial photographing at $4 per square mile, about one-fourth the cost of mapping farms by the old foot-and-transit method. The mapping costs are deducted from the County Benefit Payment totals.

AAA scientists have perfected what they claim is a highly accurate method of calculating the acreage of a given plot of land from aerial pictures. Each field on a farm stands out on the photograph like a square on a checker and the area of the field is computed and stamped on the map.

When checking time comes an AAA agent strolls across the farm with the pictures in his hand and notes which fields are planted to which crops. He does a little simple addition and knows whether the farmer has complied with the quotas.

The method is said to be very popular with the farmers, too, who proudly frame the photographs of their farm and even send copies to their friends.

AAA officials said the Outagamie maps can be used for compliance checks for several years without making new photographs. They explained that the photographs give such complete detail of trees and creeks and buildings that even though a few fence lines are changed from year to year the change can be drawn into the map quickly and accurately.

Grimm Variety Alfalfa Resistant to Lygus Bug

Discovery that the Grimm variety of alfalfa is the most resistant of several kinds tested to Lygus bug injury was announced today by Prof. O. S. Aamodt of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

The Lygus bug, Aamodt explained, punctures the alfalfa bud and often causes enough injury to prevent normal development and seed setting.

Tests jointly made by Aamodt and John Carlson of Utah showed varieties most severely injured by the bugs included Turkestan, Cossack and Ohio common.

The discovery, they said, is of considerable significance to farmers who want to produce their own alfalfa seed.

Trailer Convention to be Held at Wisconsin Dells

BY CARL W. MASON

McAllen, Texas — Wisconsin is to have another summer trailer convention and the Wisconsin Dells will be the scene of the gathering, the dates for which have been set as July 17 to 27. This gathering is under the auspices of the Automobile Tourists association which holds its great winter conventions at Bradenton, Fla. Otto Hagen of Manitowoc and Carl W. Mason of New London are Wisconsin vice presidents of the A.T.A. The Wisconsin Dells gathering is known as a Minnesota-Wisconsin conference and is a new departure in the northwest for the A.T.A. The gathering will be preliminary to the annual summer convention which will again be held at the Michigan state park grounds at Manistee, Mich., Aug. 1 to 10. It is expected a large caravan of trailers will proceed from the Dells camp to the larger assemblage at Mainistee where the summer meetings have been held for several years on the free camp grounds. It is expected a trailer show will be a feature at the Dells and that an interesting series of programs will be presented. All Wisconsin trailer owners are invited to gather at the Dells as well as others from other parts of the country.

While the radio was regaling us here in camp at McAllen seven miles from the Mexican line with tales of the furious blizzard that was sweeping Chicago and the northern states, we were fanning ourselves and leisurely playing pitch in the shade of the adjacent grapefruit grove while the mercury registered an even 100 in the shade. Gradually our ranks are melting away as trailer after trailer packs up and more or less silently steals away toward the cooler north. It is to be noted, however, that most of the laggards are not yet venturing much farther north until the weatherman sends down more encouraging reports of salubrious days and assurance that they have come to stay. San Antonio seems to be a mecca for these hesitant ones. That beautiful city has many attractions besides climate. It is one of the most reasonably priced buying centers in Texas we have found. Corpus Christi costs are high for the room and apartment renter, at least. The trailerist gets off a bit better. In McAllen I have found camp fees reasonable but many commodity and living costs high. This is particularly noticeable here in the south where the general scale of prices is much below that in the north. Texas as a whole, however, I have found higher in cost for trailerists than Florida, Mississippi or much of the rest of the south.

Awnings Popular

Awnings or complete tents for installing on the door sides of trailers are growingly popular features for combating summer heat as well as providing more residence room and freedom from dampness, insects etc. Some awnings are simple devices with ropes or straps thrown over the top of the trailer to be anchored on the farther side, the front being supported by two more poles with guy ropes. Some travelers complete the effect by hanging mosquito netting all round the outside of this awning to provide a screened porch effect, the place being used as sitting room, dining room and sometimes even kitchen and sleeping quarters.

The objections to these awnings and tents is the extra weight and bulk that must be carried and the trouble they cause in high winds. One fellow trailerist I met this season showed me a bad dent in his car caused by a metal pole of his trailer awning blowing loose and striking the automobile. Additional work is required to handle the awnings or tents but they afford a good deal of comfort under normal conditions. Where one stays for some time during heated periods they may be very useful. They aid in keeping the trailer clean and the shade afforded helps to keep the vehicle cool.

The new trailerist will do well to study the matter of the kitchen department carefully before starting out. Most novices are entranced with the arrangements of the rolling homes and have no experience to point the way for them. Where there is a woman along to cook, a stove with an oven is important to the culinary triumph of any extended tour. The little two-burner gasoline cook stoves are wonders of efficiency and do any ordinary cooking well but an oven is an important item that goes far to make the table attractive. I invested $1.29 in Milwaukee for a two-shelf sheet iron oven and I sallied forth in a glow of expectancy visioning lovely biscuits and other delights of cuisine. I baked biscuits twice and both times the tops were a pallid floury white and the bottoms darkly Ethiopian in hue. One lady friend said I should have greased the tops before baking. Another said paint the inside of the oven with aluminum paint. Still another achieved success by placing a large cookstove griddle on top of the oven to conserve the heat from above. The point I wish to make, however, is that while the portable oven may be made to do well, there are stoves with permanent ovens which are not expensive and any new trailer can be obtained from the factory equipped with one of these or so built as to accomodate one if the company is notified in advance. All whom I have interviewed praise these compact efficient little oven stoves.

Set Hearing Date on False Pretense Charge

Preliminary hearing for W. G. Schwartz, Fond du Lac, charged with obtaining a signature by false pretenses and intent to defraud to obtain satisfaction of a conditional sales contract on an automobile, was set for 10 o'clock Monday morning, May 2, by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court Monday. Bond of $1,000 was furnished.

State Credit Men Will Hold Wausau Convention

About 250 members of the Wisconsin Retail Credit association are expected to attend their fifth annual convention at Wausau May 22, 23, and 24.

Speakers for the meeting will be John Doyle, Madison, supervisor of the state banking department; John A. Lemmer, superintendent of schools at Escanaba; Miss Alice Codden, Superior; E. L. Olrich, Minneapolis, president of Munsingwear, Inc.; Hugo Kuechenmeister Milwaukee, comptroller of Schuster and company; Erwin Kant, Milwaukee, a director of the national association; R. C. Horn, Green Bay, credit manager of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation; W. A. Close, Appleton, first vice president of the state association.

Ice cream production in the record year, 1929, totalled 254,618,000 gallons.

Treat 1,343 School Children at Clinics

Vaccinadons against small pox and immunizations against diphtheria were given to 1,343 children at the series of 12 clinics held April 1-13 in Outagamie county, according to Miss Marie Klein, county nurse.

There were 31 infants, 245 preschool children and 828 school children vaccinated against small pox, and 38 infants, 251 pre-school children and 742 school children immunized against diphtheria.

The clinic centers were at Dale, Hortonville, Little Chute, Leeman, Black Creek, Freedom, Seymour, Shiocton, Bear Creek, Combined Locks, Greenville, Kimberly, Mackville and Oneida.

UNDERNEATH THE TOWNSEND CASE

Now that the curtain has been rung down on the pantomime and the Old Doc is free while everyone kisses each other declaring it all a great mistake, and Punch and Judy are laid away for another day and the masks are put in their boxes and the costumes and thunder producers are hung on the hooks, the real principle involved in the Townsend case may be discussed in that calm atmosphere that accompanies men after a good dinner or a satisfactory hour in the peanut heaven watching the heavy work of the gallery gods entertaining the great American audience.

Yet it should not be forgotten that the House action against the Old Doc was a piece of tyranny advanced for the laudable purpose of self-preservation. Election was approaching, and the House, despite its billions of campaign funds, was concerned about the Old Doc and the dimes and nickels he picked up for his threadbare campaign against those purple with power and food.

In the quiet of a happy ending return should be made to the fact that here involved in reality was a great principle of American government over which as able and patriotic men as ever upheld democracy have tussled and disagreed in just about even numbers.

And the proposition is: Why should the executive have authority to free a man for contempt of another branch of the government, particularly when that contempt is generally absolved by answering the questions once refused?

Many of the state supreme courts have held that the power to punish for contempt when resting either with a court or legislative body cannot be nullified by a pardon from the executive else the examining body is paralyzed in its authority since it cannot carry on unless it retains the power to force mistaken or defiant witnesses to answer legitimate questions.

It will be seen that the problem is thick with troubles. An executive of the Huey Long type, or even a lesser tyrant, could nullify the right of courts to try ordinary lawsuits as well as render impotent legislative inquiries by freely given pardons.

On the other hand the punishment for contempt almost always is devoid of anything partaking of harshness simply because when men refuse to answer questions, and apparently act in good faith or because misled by careless advice, they may wipe the boards clean by taking the witness stand and answering the question, or in the language of courts that have considered these problems, "The witness carries the key to his jail and by complying with the order to give the information may open his prison door."

The wrong of permitting a pardon in contempt cases would be evident if a congress and the President were at loggerheads since the President could nullify the constitutional right of congress to pursue an inquiry by promising pardons to all those who defied its authority.

THAT MAN GARNER

With our minds on several other subjects, we citizens of Wisconsin will probably forget to display a decent amount of embarrassment for a sentiment expressed by so many Badgerites about five years ago. Citizens of other states very likely expressed the same sentiment but, knowing for certain what Wisconsin people said, we had better confine this discussion to ourselves.

It is mention of the name of John Nance Garner that should embarrass us. John Garner is vice-president of the United States. He is a bulwark of brains among the flighty, a leader of the common sense group in congress, a veritable rock of Gibraltar in an administration that ebbs and flows with wind and tide. He is credited with having placed a firm hand on the president during recent episodes in Washington. He was known to have had no stomach for the supreme court packing bill last year and absented himself as much as possible during the senate battle over the measure. His attitude is one of the factors credited with having helped kill that bill. He has shown admirable good taste by refusing to commercialize his position despite the questionable example set by other members of the president's personal and official family.

This is only by way of summary. Our principal purpose is to remind a good many Wisconsin residents of the howl they raised after the 1932 election and the 1933 inauguration.

"What if something happened to Roosevelt?" they asked. "Why—we'd have that man Garner in the White House!"

It was Cactus Jack Garner in those days. He was the wild Texan from Uvalde—the man put on the ticket as a concession to Southern Democrats. According to that day's opinion. Garner was little short of a potential national calamity. Good citizens shuddered to think what might have happened had the shot that struck Mayor Cermak fatally wounded President Roosevelt instead.

For that matter, rabid New Dealers, at the height of New Deal popularity, never showed much enthusiasm for Mr. Roosevelt's vice-president. If pressed for an opinion, they rather took the attitude that he was one of the poor relations who had to be cared for, and nothing was going to happen to Mr. Roosevelt anyway.

In a political Washington that has been known for its jumpy nonsense Mr. Garner is characterized by the sound though homely sense of the statement credited to him despite denials, "Let the cattle out to fatten once in a while, and leave them alone, they're getting nervous with all these political cowboys whooping it up every day."

Yes, we know, Cactus Jack doesn't always shave the scrubble clean from his chin, likewise tobacco stains have been known to gather on that scrubble. But it's bright new dollars to moldy doughnuts that this would be a much happier nation today if Cactus Jack had more to say about it than he has.

THOSE BITTER WORDS, "TOO LATE"

With Franco's metaled boot kicking at the Barcelona door, the Loyalist government of Spain made a desperate effort to reorganize itself in its search for the necessary men of brains and valor.

Facing ruin it no longer threw out a sop to the anarchists nor smiled indulgently at any form of bloody-handed syndicalists. Out of the 12 cabinet members it quietly placed one Red in an unimportant chair as a wave of the hand at Moscow for all the help the Russians had sent but otherwise it selected Republicans for the most part, men reputed dependable.

Perhaps it is too late. It looks that way. Various forms of Reds seemingly have already scuttled the ship. Adepts at ranting and assassination they have been found wholly wanting otherwise.

Too Late is just a form of It Might Have Been. The words tell a sorrowful tale of strength wasted, opportunity ignored, and possible success turned into almost certain defeat.

France, also feeling the ground giving way beneath her feet, gazes frantically around for strong, dependable leadership.

She thinks of all of her great leaders, saviors of the nation, clear back to Jeanne d' Arc. In more recent times there was Leon Gambetta who organized heroic resistance to the enemy while the empire of Napoleon III was crumbling, and then erected upon the ruins the Third Republic which still endures. She considers also with admiration Georges Clemenceau who formed his ministry to rule the nation during the blackest hour of the World war and brought her forth to victory through his dynamic energy and grim determination.

Blum, and the other glib promissors of stick candy will not do. The nation turned from that brand with a strong feeling that she has been beguiled and hoodwinked. She hopes she has found in Daladier a strong man, true to democracy, but yet honest, candid and forthright as befits a leader who has no primrose path upon which to tread.

Let France beware. There is a brink. And there is chaos beyond it. Too Late are words of mourning that will never resurrect the dead. They are grief for the departed opportunities but they can never return them.

And yet in a broad sense what brought both Spain and France upon their present evil hour? The answer is men, the sort of men to whom they entrusted their governments. Nothing more.

Opinions Of Others

O PIONEERS!

Today one Spike Draper will set out for a month's stay in the Adironack wilds armed only with a knife, a thermometer, a pencil, and a note book. He plans to kill porcupine the first day—porcupines being exceedingly plentiful, excessively dumb, and edible. A fish line will be fashioned from porcupine gut, a fishbook will be carved from porcupine bone. He will make fire by the bow-and-spindle, or Boy Scout method.

Last week Clark Porter, a 60 year old Albion, N. Y., farmer, started for the west in a home-made prairie schooner (with a trailer attached). It is his ambition to make a trip to Missouri by mule train. At Pittsburgh A. O. Engel, a carpenter, is preparing to start on a cruise down the Mississippi in a stern-wheeler he built himself. On Thursday a band of boys and men from Hamilton, Mass., are expected to reach Marietta, O., with a covered wagon and a yoke of oxen, footsore from plodding on hard-surfaced highways. They are reenacting the 1788 trek which opened up the Ohio country for settlement.

Farmer Porter's trailer is equipped with balloon tires, his prized coonskin coat is a mail order house product. Skipper Engel's boat is equipped with radio; he won't have to miss the amateur hour. The Massachusetts reenactors doubtless have viewed signboard scenery such as the 1788 crowd never dreamed of. Mr. Draper probably will be snapped in his back-to-nature act by candid camera fiends.

America becomes more streamlined every day. Meat comes from the Smokehouse in cellophane. Cowboys wear zipper vests. Hatchery bred trout, bemused by the strangeness of liberty, grow anemic and pine away in the pools. Vast crowds push their way into indoor outdoor shows, such as the recent supercolossal sellout at the 5th Regiment armory, when, among the animal booths, a mare and colt actually were exhibited and admired by thousands as rarities of nature.

The republic grows sick and tired of its urbanity. A frustrated pioneer spirit writhes. Men don mail order coonskin jackets and set out, yearning to recapture the unrecapturable. —Baltimore Evening Sun.

ONE of the features of the week the better half and I spent in New York was our diet of newspapers . . . it was a well-balanced diet, too, I might add . . . for breakfast we had the Herald-Tribune which thinks the New Deal is a lot of legalized insanity . . . before dinner in the evening we'd try the World-Telegram which is fairly independent although it has been needling the New Deal lately . . . after coming in, from midnight on, we'd try the early edition of the Daily News, which still calls Roosevelt a gallant warrior and blames everything on wicked big business . . . which may or may not mean anything since the Daily News is a blatant sheet with terrific circulation and large quantities of expensive advertising crowding its tabloid pages . . .

A Verse for Today

YOUR FRIENDSHIP IS A BALM

Your friendship is a balm for all my ills.
Your outlook is serene. . . . Your faith in God
Unwavering. . . . Your joy in living fills
My heart with courage. . . . With kind words you prod
My soul to victory. . . . I see the blue
Of hope and Heaven when I look at you.

All other friendships fail, but not our own.
There will be sunlight still at the day's end,
When I can catch its radiance in your tone.
And dream of morning when the clouds descend,
Where you are, every influence is calm.
For all my ills, your friendship is a balm.

CATARACT

Many laymen imagine cataract is a growth of an opaque film over the sight. Probably that naive notion explains in part the popular credulity in respect to the cure of cataract by medicaments or other remedies applied to the eye. It might seem feazible enough to dissolve or make transparent such a cloudy or opaque film or membrane on the surface of the eyeball, with one or another remedy applied directly to the eye.

In truth cataract is not a growth at all, but a degeneration or a disease process, in which the crystalline lens in the interior of the eye undergoes a change from clear to opaque. The very name of the disease, cataract, was given by the ancients who imagined it was loss of sight from an opaque substance which, cataract-like, poured down over the front of the lens.

In its early stages cataract is not visible to the casual observer. Only when it reaches the late stage does the blackness and brilliancy of the pupil, as seen in normal eyes, give way to a grayish appearance.

Cataract never causes total blindness; only a gradually increasing impairment of vision.

Formerly it was the practice, still is with many oculists, to wait for complete "ripening" and a degree of impairment of vision such that the patient required guidance to get about, to operate. Today many of the best oculists operate successfully as soon as vision in the better eye becomes so poor that the patient can no longer read or get about safely without guidance, without waiting for complete ripening or opacity of the lens. The operation, of course, is removal of the lens.

After a cataract operation the patient wears spectacles with strong lenses which serve the purpose of the lost crystalline lenses.

Cause of cataract is not known. That it is a nutritional disease or degeneration seems the most plausible view at present.

In animals it is possible to produce cataract by keeping the animal for a time on a diet lacking vitamin G; and after the cataract develops, the restoration of vitamin G to the diet may cure the cataract. However, there is no evidence that lack of vitamin G or insufficient vitamin G in the diet may cause cataract in man. Certainly there is no evidence that adding vitamin G to the diet ever cures cataract in man.

I know of no remedy or treatment likely to be of any benefit in cases of cataract, save operation.

Several correspondents have written to assure me that the iodin ration, plus the protective corrective diet and a regular daily supplementary feeding with vitamins B, G and D, followed for many months has seemed to bring about remarkable improvement in the condition of patients with advanced cataract, especially great improvement in vision. This may be wholly coincidence. But such a regimen can at least do no harm in any case, in fact is likely to benefit general health, so I'll be glad to send complete instructions to any reader who asks for instructions and incloses a three-cent-stamped envelope bearing his address.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The B. B. B. B. B.

The mail man sent the baby book back because he didn't recognize the name of my sister at that address. Will you please send the book again to the same address? (Mrs. L.L.)

Answer—It would be a task to attempt to trace your earlier request among seven thousand similar requests. To obtain a copy of the Bigger Brady Better Baby Book, ask for it and enclose with your request a stamped envelope bearing your address. We cannot send the Baby Book unless the envelope is at least standard size (4 by 6 inches), bears a three cent stamp and your address. Postcard requests, or requests not accompanied with the stamped addressed envelope cannot be answered. Nor can we mail the Baby Book in a toy envelope.

Calcium

Please tell me whether the dose of 9 grains of calcium phosphate and 6 grains of calcium gluconate with 750 units of vitamin D is the proper dose for children as well as grownups? (Mrs. J. H.)

Answer—Yes. Children need rather larger doses of calcium and of vitamin D than grownups.

Your Birthday

"TAURUS"

If April 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m.; from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

You should remember that usually there are "two sides to every question, exactly opposite to each other," so avoid doing someone an injustice by analyzing both sides of any controversy before expressing your opinion. Harboring imaginary wrongs, as well as thinking too much about what you may consider the faults of a relative or friend, is liable to cause you to do a great injustice. There is danger of considerable valuable time being wasted this day through a lot of useless palavering, for a desire to gossip will be a prevailing trait. Impelling influences are liable to make you do something you may have been very reluctant to attempt. Much good is apt to be derived from your effort to encourage someone else this day. Kind words will be needed to offset the harshness of many uncalled for sarcastic remarks that will have been inspired this day by feelings akin to hatred or envy. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are head over heels in love, must overlook no opportunity, to display their sentimental regard for the one whose birth anniversary this is.

If a woman and April 21 is your birthday, you may have the reputation of frequently doing unexpected things. You have, most likely, many unique and decidedly original ideas, which, if commercially applied, ought to make you considerable sums of money. If you remain very long in one place you are apt to grow restless, for you have, in all likelihood, an insatiable longing to travel. Through acting, singing, dancing, selling or writing you should make a fine living. Your matrimonial ambitions are likely to be thoroughly satisfied.

The child born on April 21, has generally, a good disposition, which is frequently ruined by the father's or mother's love for teasing. Being sensitive, this youngster requires tactful handling, plenty of encouragement and a vast amount of affection.

If a man and April 21 is your natal day, you most likely have the knack of handling people. You perhaps are inclined to worry too much. If you permit it, jealously can make you very unhappy. As an army or navy man, politician, sales executive, artist, author, lawyer, promoter or physician your chances of making an enviable record appear to be unlimited.

Successful People Born on April 21:

Alexander Anderson, engraver.
Henry Ware, Jr., clergyman.
Henry K. Bush-Brown, sculptor.
Charles S. Bull, physician.
John Muir, naturalist.

SHOULD DEFER ACTION

Editor, Post-Crescent: I wish to join Taxpayer whose letter was in the Forum Monday evening protesting the totally unexpected action of the Park Board in so drastically restricting the use of Erb Park by responsible organizations for the entertainment and enjoyment of the public. The evidence very strongly indicates that the public does enjoy the type of entertainment it has been customary to have in Erb Park July 4th and Labor Day. Both of these Celebrations are sponsored by responsible organizations neither of whom ever requested or desired permission to sell intoxicating liquor in the park.

Last year the Appleton Trades and Labor Council sponsored the Labor Day celebration and we received many compliments on the type of entertainment provided and the orderly manner in which it was conducted, and many requests that we repeat the celebration this year.

In view of the fact that thousands of our citizens attended and seemed to enjoy themselves, the delegates to the Trades and Labor council representing 33 local unions and in excess of 3,000 members, most of whom are heads of families and citizens and tax payers, voted unanimously to do so.

Following the same proceedure as in the past, we requested permission to use Erb Park and was granted that permission. We therefore proceeded to make the necessary arrangements and have committed ourselves to considerable expense which will be a total loss to us unless the action of the park board is deferred at least until next year. We have incurred these obligations in good faith on the word of the park superintendent who we were informed had sole authority to grant such permission.

In view of the fact that the park board is not in a position at this time to provide an equally desirable location we do not believe they have the moral right to default on their promise and cause us such an expense, and deprive thousands of our citizens of an expected and desired holiday celebration.

Regarding the commercial factor, any organization sponsoring such a celebration takes a risk of loosing many times the amount they can possibly make. Last year we spent for labor $60.70, part of which was for cleaning up the park which was cheerfully paid and considered a proper charge: advertising $100.50, merchandise purchased from 18 Appleton firms $1,168.06; music $110.00; other free entertainment $375.00.

We believe that because of our celebration in Appleton at least 3,000 families remained in Appleton over the Labor Day weekend, who otherwise would have gone elsewhere to spend this holiday. It is a conservative estimate that each of these families spent for food alone $3 or $4 which would amount to $9,000 or $10,000, which is something for our merchants to think about.

In working out our program last year we consulted the Mayor and the chief of police and informed them that we did not want anything on our program that would be objectionable to any fair minded person, and every thing we had was approved by them. We propose to follow the same course this year. We had no inkling of any objection on the part of any one until this new ruling of the Park Board was published in the Post Crescent. We are informed that this ruling was made on the strength of a petition signed by only four people, purporting to represent a group that can only be a very small minority of the citizens of Appleton, and without giving the opposition any opportunity to be heard. We do not believe such arbitrary action conforms to the democratic form of government under which we are supposed to live, for after all Erb Park belongs to all the citizens and taxpayers of Appleton.

We think that in all fairness and justice to the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Appleton Trades and Labor Council, and the citizens of Appleton the Park Board should defer its recent action at least until next year without fear of censor of any fair minded person.

CARL SMITH

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The man who keeps the Ambassador from Spain from meeting head-on at the White House with the Ambassador from Germany, and who sees that Mrs. Nobody - in - particular is kept from boring Senator Hotpotato, and who sees that the right Mr. Jones gets in to see the President, and who has a car ready for Mrs. Roosevelt, and who keeps cigaret stubs from accumulating in the East Room — that is Mr. Howell Crim.

Grover

Mr. Crim is the new head usher in the White House, a job for which he was trained under the late Ike Hoover, who spent 42 years at the White House and then wrote a book about it, to the delight of many and the dismay of others who were looked upon by the observant Mr. Hoover as nothing much.

Being head usher at the White House is something like being manager of an exclusive hotel. When state dinners are held he greets all the guests, sees to it that everybody meet everybody else, and that the right gentleman finds the right lady to take to the right place in the dining room.

It's Done By Formula

Mr. Crim is altogether nonchallant about the ambassadors and the Joneses. If Mr. Krakonki of a certain legation thinks Mrs. Saloniki, wife of an acting minister, is an old sputterbug, it means nothing to Mr. Crim, although he may know all about it. When the formula of rank and precedence calls for Mr. Krankonki to take Mrs. Saloniki to dinner he will take her and make small talk about Washington laundries or the plight of the second secretary whose wife would up and have twins just as he seemed to be doing so nicely in the diplomatic service.

"They are steeled to that sort of thing," says Mr. Crim.

He once had to stop a dog fight right in the middle of a room full of guests. Mrs. Boettiger, the President's daughter, had two bird dogs which had the run of the White House before they moved with the family to Seattle. When Jimmy Roosevelt came from Boston he brought a bird dog. Mrs. Boettiger's dogs were quietly sleeping in the corner of the big East Room when Jimmy's dog hove in. The fight was instant and furious, and the guests seemed to enjoy it.

Guests who come to the White House for the first time are usually awed by the size of the East Room. Converted into a barn it would shelter 30 head of Jerseys and 10 tons of hay. When guests ask what it is used for Mr. Crim always tells them dances and receptions. Often he is tempted to tell them: "Sometimes we have dog fights in here." He never has told a guest that, however.

A Coolidge Remark

Once a guest remarked that he had slept in the East Room. Later he explained that a violinist playing for the Coolidges had soothed him to sleep with languorous notes. When the playing ended, President Coolidge, sitting beside him, shook his knee to awaken him.

"The concert is over," the President announced, Coolidge-like.

Mr. Crim arranges for about 400 overnight guests at the White House each year but doesn't live there himself. Tall, dark haired, partly bald, he walks 15 blocks to work and home again at night. He began government service as a stenographer in 1916, served three war years in the navy, refused a White House ushering job in 1920 but accepted early in the Hoover administration.

He has two assistants, one of whom is Charles Claunch, a top-flight sailorman who acted as President Roosevelt's secretary on the South American trip. Claunch's enlistment expires in September, when he will accept the job of assistant usher.

But the man to envy is the colored doorman. He has the most beautiful blue vest we ever saw.

Alger Is Elected Head of Council To Succeed Cooper

Mayor Nelson Makes Appointments for Year at Organization Session

Kaukauna—Oscar Alger succeeded Raymond Nagel and G. S. Mulholland took the place of W. H. Cooper as chairman of the finance and utility committees as Mayor Lewis F. Nelson made his appointments for the year at last night's council meeting.

Alger was unanimously elected president of the council, succeeding Cooper. Mulholland, as chairman of the utility committee, automatically becomes a member of the utility commission in place of Cooper. Reappointments made by Nelson were Joseph V. Krahn, relief director; Thomas Reardon, north side road commissioner; Charles Lowery, south side road commissioner; A. M. Schmalz, to succeed himself on the fire and police commission, and Ceil Flynn, city nurse.

No appointment was made to the post of city health officer, Nelson explaining that the ordinance committee was now considering the substitution of a city health commissioner or city physician and that their report would have to be in first.

Committee Members

Other committees appointed were as follows:

North road district, Jule Mertes, chairman, Al Hartzheim, G. S. Mulholland.

South road district, Edward Steidl, chairman, Frank Femal, Raymond Nagel.

Sewers, T. L. Seggelink, chairman, Otto Ludtke, Oscar Alger.

Poor, Raymond Nagel, chairman, Frank Femal, Al Hartzheim.

Ordinance and printing, Walter Kilgas, chairman, T. L. Seggelink, Otto Ludtke.

Public grounds and buildings, Frank Femal, chairman, Edward Steidl, Raymond Nagel.

Privileges and elections, Jule Mertes, chairman, Walter Kilgas, Oscar Alger.

Claims other than accounts, Edward Steidl, chairman, Walter Kilgas, Jule Mertes.

Public health and education, Otto Ludtke, chairman, Frank Femal, Raymond Nagel.

License, T. L. Seggelink, chairman, Otto Ludtke, Walter Kilgas.

G. S Mulholland and Edward Steidl are members of the finance committee, and Walter Kilgas and Otto Ludtke of the utility committee.

Fire and Police

Al Hartzheim is chairman of the committee on fire and police, with Kilgas and Femal other members.

Alderman Seggelink brought the subject of proposed changes in the city's health ordinances before the council, and explained that as several things were not yet clear he had no measure to offer at the time.

"Such matters as changing from a health officer to a city physician, and the question of who appoints the health officer and who fixes his salary—these make me think it advisable to recommend nothing until after further consideration," Seggelink said.

Dr. C. D. Boyd, city health officer, stated he had been asked to write to the state board of health to see who should set the health officer's salary. The reply still left the question uncertain, he said, adding that at least the board of health sets it in Kaukauna. Seggelink replied that it seemed that, as the ordinance provided the salary be set at the meeting regularly set aside for the setting of all other salaries by the council, that the health officer's salary should be fixed at this time by the council also.

Suggests Study

City Attorney Harry F. McAndrews said that there was more than a difference in words between health officer, health commissioner and city physician, and asked that the ordinance committee meet again and discuss the matter thoroughly.

A milk dealers license was granted to the Appleton Pure Milk company. The request previously had been laid over until the applicant could produce information on the sources of its supply.

Licenses to act as bartenders were granted to Lester Ludetke and Sylvester Lehrer.

Mayor Nelson told the council that a committee of the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church had objected to the city's taking over the tennis court of W. F. Ashe, contending that noise from the court would disturb church activities. The court is situated across the street from the church.

Approve Seal Sale

A purchase of seals sold by the American Legion for the benefit of the Wisconsin Association for the disabled was approved by the council.

The bid of George Egan, representing the Fidelity and Casualty Insurance company of New York, for a $30,000 city treasurer's bond and a $1,000 city clerk's bond, was accepted by the city. There were five other bids.

Alderman Raymond Nagel, chairman of the finance committee, referred the requests of Kaukauna's two baseball teams for aid back to the council.

"We realize the advertising value of the mines," Nagel said, "but feel we cannot go beyond the strict budget we adopted at the beginning of the year. The council may act if it wishes."

Alderman W. H. Cooper recalled the winning of the state championship by the club last year, and suggested the city aid by purchasing advertising space on score cards. No action was taken.

The bid of the Earl Thiele Fuel company for a carload of sewer pipe was accepted from among four bids.

The council was asked to ratify an agreement with the City Employes union to go into effect May 1, when the union's last year's contract expires. The matter was laid over until the council meeting May 3.

Lee Lambie broke his last year's mark of 57.4 seconds in the 440 yard dash, winning the event in 56 seconds flat.

Bill Peterson's 24 second time in the 220 yard dash was two tenths seconds better than Robert Vanevenhoven's former record set in 1930. 20 Seek Places on Valley Loop Nine

Players in Daily Practice Sessions; Open Against Grand Chute

Kaukauna — More than 20 candidates for the Kaukauna entry in the Fox River Valley league have turned out so far to compete for positions, according to Manager Wally Kilgas. Practices will be held at 5 o'clock every day this week, with the opening game scheduled for May 8 at Grand Chute. The first home game will be played here a week later against Little Chute Any more athletes wishing to try out are still welcome, Kilgas said, with all comers having an opportunity to play on what is strictly a home talent team.

Four prospective twirlers are included in those out, Bob Van Drasek, Harold Giese, Ed Schuler and Lee Lambie. Catchers will be chosen from among George Bloch, Steve Andrejeski, Cliff Vanevenhoven, Pete Mathis and Mike Vils.

Those who have shown a preference for outfield play are Sylvester Kappell, Gib Busse, Bill Alger, Mark Rohan, Vic Rohan, Omaha Gast and Bill Peterson. First basemen are Ralph Wurdinger and Cliff Rohan. Bill Rohan stands alone at second and Butts Belongea is the only candidate for the hot corner. Shortstops are Carl Schuler and Ralph Johnson.

When college lets out the team will be augmented by the addition of Karl Towsley and Bob Hatchell, both outfielders, who are now at Lake Forest

The positions listed for players are their own choice, and Kilgas probably will make some changes before opening day rolls around.

Town of Buchanan Fire Protection Is Extended to July 1

Town Representative Asks City for Truck Storage Facilities

Kaukauna—Fire protection by the city of Kaukauna to the town of Buchanan was extended last night until July 1 by the common council. Last fall the city arranged to answer calls from Buchanan until June 1.

Frank Schmidt requested for Buchanan that the city allow it to keep a fire truck, which it plans to purchase, in the city fire department here.

"We're going to buy a fire truck," Schmidt said. "A committee of four, working with Henry Esler, Kaukauna fire chief, has already decided upon a well-equipped truck

"What we want is to have Kaukauna house our truck. We will pay the city every time it is called to Buchanan. We will pay all insurance, repairs and upkeep on the truck. If the city wants to use the truck, which is constructed to operate on city hydrants, it may do so If you don't house the truck for us, we won't be able to buy it"

Esler Favors Plan

Esler supported Schmidt's statements, adding that money accruing to the city from outside runs would be placed in the pension fund.

Mike Gerharz, chairman of the fire and police commission, said he would have to get the reaction of other committe members before he could recommend that the council accept Buchanan's proposition.

Gerharz' suggestion that the fire protection deadline be extended from June 1 to July 1 to allow the town of Buchanan to incorporate their requests in writing with the city attorney, who would present it to the fire and police commission, and they would recommend to the council, was approved.

Cooper Retires From Council Job

Mayor Presents Gift to Veteran Alderman on Behalf of Officials

Kaukauna—W. H. Cooper, Second ward alderman who retired from the common council last night after serving almost continuously since 1921, was presented with a smoking set by Mayor Lewis F. Nelson on behalf of himself, the utility commission and the common council.

"He has been serving the people of Kaukauna for 17 years," Nelson said in making the presentation, and I've enjoyed working with him the short time I've been in office as much as council members have for many years."

Nelson commended Cooper for the straightforward attitude he has always taken on city questions.

"We've had our differences but we've always known just where he stood," Nelson said of Cooper.

If there was some kind of argument on he would be able to express himself better, Cooper said in accepting the gift, adding that he hoped his services would not end with retirement from the council, offering to help anytime he could be of aid to Kaukauna citizens. The presentation was applauded by the largest council attendance of the year.

"Finest automobile ever produced for the money!"

Read this letter from Wayne C. Brewer: "Several months ago I purchased my seventh Ford in ten years. As usual, I took delivery of the new car without a demonstration, knowing that it would be better than the previous one. But the agreeable surprise I got when I drove my 1938 De Luxe Tudor is the reason for this letter.

"The greatly improved riding qualities, the comfortable, roomy seats with easy adjustments, the easy handling, the mechanical brakes that give you a feeling of real safety, and an excellent V-8 engine averaging 19 miles per gallon — traveling at around 44 miles an hour. And, of course, it's so very smart looking. You can quote me as saying that the De Luxe Ford V-8 is the finest automobile ever produced for the money."

Motorists Warned Not to Interfere With Fire-Fighters

Kimberly — The arrest of a Kimberly motorist last week who caused a fire truck to stop when answering a call, has brought out notice by Chief of Police John Bernardy and Fire Chief Alex Malcolm, that the state laws prohibiting interference by motorist with fire fighting activities and equipment will be strictly enforced in Kimberly.

WRONG IS RIGHT

Anchorage, Alaska—(AP)—Driving on the "wrong" side of the road may be all right at times in Alaska, a federal judge has decided.

Observing that on the territory's country roads there sometimes is "one beaten track or lane of travel" used by automobiles traveling in both directions, Judge Simon Hellenthal instructed a jury in an accident case that a motorist "is not necessarily negligent because he drives on the left-hand side of a road in which but one track is being used, provided he drives cautiously."

Haresfoot Dancing Pleases Audience; Acting Doesn't

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

A NEAR capacity crowd attended the University of Wisconsin Haresfoot club production, "Let's Talk Turkey," Tuesday night at the Rio theater, and the majority of them left the theater after it was over feeling that Haresfoot was not the sparkling thing it used to be. The costumes were beautiful and the dances excellent, but the dialogue was dull and the acting, with one or two exceptions, needed a lot of unbending.

One of the exceptions was Seymour Horwitz, who played the role of the baroness with real gusto. The audience was particularly amused when he stopped his song in the second act and nonchalantly asked the orchestra leader to start over again because he hadn't got into it right.

Both the story and the setting were the typical musical comedy sort. The barracks of the Sixth Hungarian Hussars at Budapest, a gypsy camp outside the city and the visit of the son of the sultan of Turkey and his harem—all provided good excuse for brilliant costumes and special dances. The plot centered around the search which the sultan's son was making in Europe for his cousin, who was kidnaped by a gypsy tribe when she was a baby. She turns out to be the gypsy princess, whom he recognizes by the locket she wears. And then the gypsy princess can marry the handsome young major, because she's a titled Turkish lady now instead of a roving gypsy, and everything ends happily.

With the right lines, the play could have been entertaining. As it was, the dialogue got few chuckles from the audience. But if their main reason for going to the show was to see men dressed in women's clothes, they probably were satisfied. The men "chorines," bewigged and rouged, were really a pretty eyeful, and their Oriental, gypsy and French can-can dances were well done.

And it is only fair to admit that there was a song, "Our Land of Make Believe," sung in the second act by the major and the gypsy princess, which sounded good enough to make the hit parade. Arthur Beeken played the major and Richard Kepler was cast as the gypsy girl.

WORKMEN GRIND FERTILIZER AT SEWAGE TREATMENT PLANT

In the above picture are sewage treatment plant workmen who are grinding air-dryed sludge into fertilizer which is being offered for sale at $1.50 per hundred pounds. The machine in the picture was built by plant workmen at a cost of $560, a saving of $1,000, according to C. A. Baetz, superintendent. The fertilizer, after it is ground and sacked, looks like black earth and may be used on gardens, lawns and shrubs. The fertilizer is sold in sacks or barrels and may be purchased at a lower price by the ton, Baetz said. About 50 tons are available at the plant. In the picture are, left to right: Baetz, Lee Simpson, carrying the basket; Chris Dresang, tending the basket filler; Al Howlett and Wenzel Blob, feeding the conveyer. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Elect Four New K-C Directors at Neenah Meeting

F. J. Sensenbrenner Is Re-elected President of Corporation

Neenah — Four new directors were named to fill vacancies on the board of directors of the Kimberly-Clark corporation at a meeting here Tuesday afternoon when it was announced that the earnings took a slight drop during the first quarter of this year in comparison with the same period of 1937.

The new directors elected are H. G. Boon and C. G. Parker, Appleton; F. E. Sensenbrenner, Menasha and John R. Kimberly, Neenah.

Earnings of the corporation during the first quarter were equal to 89 cents per share on common stock after the deduction of preferred dividends and all charges including the tax on undistributed profits, Mr. Parker said. These earnings compare with 92 cents a share in the comparable 1937 period and were after an estimated allowance of about $41,000 for nine months losses of the William Bonifas Lumber company, Marenisco, Mich., a subsidiary.

Gain Over Year Period

Earnings in the 12 months ending March 31 were equal to $3.52 per share on common stock, an increase over the comparable period ending on the same date in 1937, which was $2.27.

Other directors of the corporation are F. J. Sensenbrenner, J. S. Sensenbrenner, S. F. Shattuck, C. B. Clark and Ernst Mahler and C. H. Sage, Neenah; M. L. Emerich, Chicago; John Hancock, New York; Walter Kasten, Milwaukee; J. C. Kimberly, Washington, D. C.

The officers elected are F. J. Sensenbrenner, president; Ernst Mahler, executive vice president; J. S. Sensenbrenner, Mr. Shattuck, Mr. Sage and C. G. Parker, vice presidents; J. F. Hunt, secretary and comptroller; W. H. Clifford, treasurer, and F. E. Sensenbrenner, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

'Little Norway' Is Willed to State

Madison—(AP)— A copy of the will of the late Isak J. Dahle, filed in Dane county court yesterday, directs that the deceased's estate, "Little Norway," located near Mount Horeb, be given to the state or some society which will agree to maintain it.

Dahle, a Chicago insurance man, died Nov. 24. The original copy of the will was filed in Cook county, Illinois, where his property was valued at $20,000. A copy was filed here because his Wisconsin holdings, valued at $10,000, are located in Dane county. The will provides that the property may be sold if no suitable donee is found.

"Little Norway" received its name from the dwellings, terrain and landscaping, resembling a Norwegian village, which were built on the estate.

New Council Will Revive Athletic Stadium Proposal

Alderman Grignon Suggests Erection of Temporary Bleachers

Erection of temporary bleachers at Spencer street athletic field will be considered at its first regular meeting of the new city council at 7:30 tonight in city hall.

A resolution to build the bleachers will be submitted by Alderman Grignon, it was reported this morning. A proposal to fence the field and construct a stadium and fieldhouse was tabled last fall when the council decided the estimate from $35,000 to $50,000 was too high.

An ordinance restricting parking on S. Walnut street and S. Morrison street will be before the council tonight. The ordinance has been published. Parking on the two streets from College avenue to Lawrence street would be restricted to 90 minutes under the proposed ordinance.

Other matters to be considered by the council include graveling of several streets, changes in the zoning ordinance, installation of sidewalks and oiling on several streets.

Letters containing information on tests of resurfacing materials with price quotations for the tests will be read by the clerk.

Guidance Booklet Issued to Pupils

'Futures,' by H. H. Helble, First to Have New School Picture

The first Appleton High school publication to carry a picture of the new senior school on its cover, "Futures," was issued this week. The book, a guide for junior high school pupils entering the senior school next year, was written by H. H. Helble, high school principal.

The modernistic cover was designed by Peter Giovannini, art instructor, and the printing was done by John Notebaart and his Vocational school printing class.

The booklet aims to assist junior school pupils in a better understanding of the senior high school. By reading and studying it the pupils should gain a clear conception of what subjects and courses the senior school offers so that a more intelligent choice of subjects may be made.

The pamphlets are being distributed to students of Appleton's three junior high schools and to pupils of St. Joseph Parochial school. Guidance conferences will be held this week and Mr. Helble will speak to each of the groups before the end of the term.

Gifford Assails Walker's Report On Phone Inquiry

A. T. and T. President Calls Findings 'Incorrect and Misleading'

New York—(AP)—Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone and Telegraph company, repeated to stockholders at their annual meeting today in stronger language his April 1 criticism of Federal Communications Commissioner Paul Walker's "one-man" report on the investigation of A. T. and T.

Gifford described the report—in which Walker had said telephone rates could be cut 25 per cent "without interrupting existing net earnings" as "incorrect and misleading." He said:

"The investigators, in attempted support of unfair or erroneous assertions, employed selected facts while ignoring other and controlling facts; they imparted to tentative office memoranda prepared for purposes of preliminary study or discussion the authority of final declarations of company policy; they related documents to circumstances other than those under which they were prepared or used or to whch they were addressed; they drew and stated utterly unwarranted infercnces and professed and urged illogical and unfair conclusions."

Gain in Telephones

Despite general slowing up of business, Gifford told the stockholders, "we continue to gain in the number of telephones. During the first two weeks of April, we have gained 14,000 telephones, but the number of toll and long distance conversations continue to be somewhat less than the corresponding period of a year ago.

"With wages and taxes higher, current earnings are somewhat lower. Bell system earnings for the three months ending Feb. 28, 1936 were at the annual rate of $7.76 per share. Earnings for the 12 months ending Feb. 28, 1938, were $9.31 per share."

He said taxes for the Bell system were running about nine million dollars higher for 1938 than in 1937. Bell system taxes, he said, are over $9 per share per telephone and more than $7 per share of common stock. The current tax bill of some $145,000,000 a year, he added, is about $60,000,000 greater than in 1930 and is equal to over one-third of total expense.

The figures given, he said, do not include taxes imposed upon users of telephone service.

Greek Orthodox Church Conducts Special Services

Appleton Members Join in Observance of Holy Week

This week is being observed as Holy Week by members of the Greek Orthodox community of the Fox river valley including a large number from Appleton, with special services at Holy Trinity church, Fond du Lac. This morning the mass of the pre-sanctified was celebrated and this evening there will be a service of the sacrament of holy unction, still celebrated by the Orthodox church for the improvement or cure of physical and spiritual weaknesses. The difference in the time of observance for Orthodox Greeks occurs because they follow the Julian calendar instead of the Gregorian.

Tomorrow which is known as Great Thursday or Holy Thursday, the liturgy of St. Basil is read. Bread consecrated on this day is kept throughout the year for special occasions for the sick and other purposes. At this rite which commemorates the last supper many of the church members receive communion. At the Thursday night service the reading of the 12 gospels on the passion of Christ takes place, and there is a procession with the large wooden cross which stands behind the altar in every Orthodox church.

Prayers of the ancient six holy hours are condensed into a 2-hour service for Good Friday morning. At vespers in the afternoon the figure of Christ is removed from the cross. In the church stands a tomb made entirely of flowers, surmounted by an ikon of the scene preceding the burial of Christ. Every family in the parish donates flowers for the tomb.

Candlelight Procession

At night there is a candlelight procession with eulogy appropriate to the passion of Christ. This service is the stronghold of orthodoxy in eastern countries and is one of the most impressive of the season.

Great Saturday rites combine in the liturgy of the morning the sorrow of the burial with the anticipated joy of the resurrection. The elaborate evening service is planned to end shortly after midnight. At 12 o'clock all lights in the church are extinguished and two minutes later the priest appears carrying a lighted candle with which he lights candles carried by all members of the congregation who carry them in procession around the church.

Sunday morning which is celebrated as Easter, the holy door of the tabernacle is opened and remains so during all of Easter week. The "love feast" will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at which time the gospels will be read in all languages. The Rev. Chrysostomos Trahadeas, pastor of Holy Trinity church, will conduct all services.

It Is Said--

That an Appleton doctor, attending Haresfoot last night, went through several anxious moments and all the pockets of his suit looking for ticket stubs and then found he was the victim of a practical joke perpetrated by a friend.

The doctor was waiting for the show to open when a man, apparently an usher, came walking down the aisle in the semi-darkness and asked for the ticket stubs in a very authoritative tone of voice. The doctor hunted for them and hunted some more. Just about the time he was becoming desperate, he recognized the "usher" as a friend of his, out for a little fun.

TOBACCO PLANTERS SAY

Kansas City Chief Now Sir Thomaso Pendergast

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Prostitutes and professional gamblers of the underworld of Kansas City should rejoice at the news that Thomas J. Pendergast has been honored by Premier Benito Mussolini with the order of knight of the crown of Italy. Mr. Pendergast is a good man and especially good to the ancient professions which thrive with a minimum of molestation under the benign regulation of his police. He now becomes Sir Thomaso Pendergast, and the honor, such as it is, is singularly fitting, coming from one dictator to another.

Pegler

Commendatore Pendergast received the ribbon and the insignia of the order from the hands of Alessandro Savorgnan, the Italian vice consul in St. Louis, who said: "The Italians know their friends and know how to show their gratitude." The word "vice" in Signor Savorgnan's title is merely a homonym, for it really means "assistant," but the ladies of the evening who sit smiling in the public show windows of the sin stores and the dealers behind the green tables of the gambling plants will be happily unaware of that. They are likely to sense an additional compliment, conceived with flattering old world diplomatic subtlety, to the man by whose word Kansas City has remained a wide-open town.

As to whether the Italians know their friends and how to show their gratitude, Signor Savorgnan probably knows best. It must be noted, however, that as a nation Italy sometimes appears to dissemble her gratitude. She was a friend of Germany in 1916, but showed her devotion by jumping Germany from behind. Again, in 1917, she was a friend of Great Britain. As in the case of Sir Thomaso Pendergast, Italy, on that occasion, presented to various British soldiers and statesmen small tokens of her friendship dangling from pretty ribbons. But less than two years ago, by Mussolini's order, the Italian children were being taught to hate everything British in ten easy lessons.

Maybe Mussolini Likes Way City Is Governed

Moreover, although Mussolini has proclaimed something akin to anschluss with the nazis of today, it is not long since he suppressed the yodel as a subversive expression among his own captive nazis in the Austrian tyrol and was shooting numbers of them for attempting to achieve individual anschluss on foot over the mountain barrier. And the 250,000 surviving Tyrolean nazis are still captives, forbidden to speak their own language or to yearn for anschluss out loud in any tongue, which is still another way that Mussolini has of showing his friendship, considering how wholeheartedly he claims to cherish the nazis. So Sir Thomaso Pendergast may be permitted a few mental reservations in his remarks of gratitude on accepting the knighthood of the order of the crown of Italy.

Just what services he rendered to deserve this gesture it is hard to perceive from this distance. Signor Savorgnan did not say explicitly what Commendatore Pendergast did to deserve this gratitude, and it may be that Mussolini just wanted to indicate his general satisfaction over the adaptation of his ideas of government in one American community.

Underworld Construes Honor As Compliment

Naturally the members of the Kansas City underworld will construe the honor as an indirect compliment to them, and it would be a touching demonstration to the boss if they should all take to wearing small duplicates of the medal in token of their loyalty to the Missouri commendatore.

Mussolini would be nothing without his subjects, and Sir Thomaso never could have earned the duce's admiration without the support of his people, including the ladies in the display windows of the sin stores men at the crap tables.

Some regimental commanders, on receiving great personal honors, donate them to regimental headquarters as belonging to the humblest as well as the mightiest. It would be a touching act of humility if Sir Thomaso should turn over his order of the crown of Italy to be hung in some parlor house reeking of perfume or some gambling cellar within the protectorate of his machine.

Consider Housing Plan For Low-Income Group

New Orleans — (AP)—Construction of 2,000,000 homes costing no more than $2,500 each for family units with a weekly income of $30 or less was advanced Tuesday as a possible solution to the small home problem.

Walter R. McCormack, chairman of the American Institute of Architects' committee on housing said the plan was under consideration. He will read his committee's report at an institute meeting tomorrow. Included in the original cost of $2,500 would be the architect's fee, material, plumbing, heating and wiring, he said. It would not include the land.

Farm Products Prices Are Below 1937 Level

Chicago —(AP)— With the start of the 1938 cycle of farm harvests only a month away, market prices of major agricultural commodities today are 13 to 50 per cent less than a year ago and 29 to 57 per cent below recovery highs.

However, prices are 33 to 177 per cent higher than the lows recorded during 1932 and 1933.

Farmers have larger quantities of produce to sell compared with a year ago, but the increased supply will not fully offset the severe price drop that has accompanied the business slump, analysis of statistics in Chicago commodity markets disclosed. Consequently, government statisticians have forecast a drop in farm income compared with the eight-year high record of 1937.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

WPA Crew Begins Improvement Work At Sewage Plant

Improvement of the Appleton Treatment plant property was started yesterday by a crew of 40 WPA workmen, according to C. O. Baetz, plant superintendent. Curbs and gutters will be constructed on the road leading into the plant and a road will be built northeast of the plant to make the park area accessible. The grounds will be leveled, graded and seeded and trees will be transplanted from the plant nursery. The trees will be planted along the roads, on the river bank and around the sludge beds. A stone wall, about three feet high, will be built in front of the administration building to keep the hillside from slipping onto the road.

Baton Rouge, La.—(AP)—A return of $137 from an eighth of an acre, making the soil yield at the rate of more than $1,000 an acre, sounds more like some kind of mining operation than farming.

The Anglo-Italian Agreement

The Anglo-Italian agreement may well prove to be an historic event comparable with Italy's decision to enter the World War on the Allied side.

In 1914, it will be recalled, there was another Rome-Berlin axis known as the Triple Alliance But when it was put to the crucial test, Italy realized at once that the vital interest of her own security demanded the defeat of Pan-Germanism in Central Europe and the Balkans and the Near East and that her position as a maritime nation demanded a partnership with British sea power.

One of the men who led the Italians out of the German alliance and into the British alliance was Benito Mussolini, until then a rather obscure agitator of the extreme left. Then, as now, the British had to pay a price for the change of Italian policy, and the price, then as now, was to make concessions to Italian imperialism in the eastern half of the Mediterranean.

The bargain struck in 1915 had many features which were indefensible on the general grounds of morals and in the light of what the Allies professed to be fighting for. But to convert Italy, first, into a neutral and, then, into an ally was one of the indispensable and decisive conditions of the Allied victory. Had this not been done, it would almost certainly have meant the success of the great Pan-German thrust by way of Vienna and Belgrade to Constantinople and Bagdad.

The same fundamental causes which induced Italy to leave the Rome-Berlin axis in 1915 and to come to terms with Britain and France have operated once more, and the same fundamental reasons which induced Britain to make concessions then have once more prevailed.

3-Way Combination Dangerous To Britain

From the British side the dominating fact in the situation has been the intolerable danger of the German-Italian-Japanese combination. Britain has been confronted with three antagonists acting in concert and, unable to deal with all three together, Britain has been unable to deal with any one of them. With no ally but France, Britain simply could not oppose Germany in the North Sea and in Central Europe, Italy in the Mediterranean and in Africa, Japan in the Far East. So, ever since the Berlin-Rome-Tokio combination came into existence, the British power in the world has been paralyzed and Britain has been forced to abandon her professed ideals and her vested interests.

It was essential to British interests and to the general interest of the world that this hostile combination should be dissolved. There was really no alternative. For the Eden policy of refusing to bargain and refusing to fight, of bombarding the dictators with angry threats and of retreating before their armed aggression, was leading—in fact it had led—from one major disaster to another. It did not restrain the militarization of Germany; it did not prevent the conquest of Ethiopia; it did not prevent the invasion of China. But it turned Italy into a most dangerous enemy of Britain and France all the way from Spain to Arabia, and it made Italy a great enough menace to Britain to paralyze completely British influence both in Europe and in the Far East

Chamberlain Has Ample Reason For Negotiating

Thus Mr. Chamberlain has had compelling reasons for negotiating with Mussolini. But Mussolini also has had compelling reasons for negotiating with Mr. Chamberlain. For he was on his way to becoming not the ally of Germany but the vassal of Germany, and the catspaw of Germany and Japan. He knew very well that if British imperialism had to fight one of the military dictatorships, it would have to fight his: Britain would give up China and Central Europe but it would never give up Egypt and the road to India. In a war with Britain he had no chance to win. In the end he was certain to be crushed. Whereas the Germans and the Japanese were advancing in regions where Britain had only a secondary interest and where Britain had no great military power, Mussolini was threatening the vital interests of Britain at the point where British power is still enormously great.

For Mussolini to challenge Britain further was to the advantage of Germany and Japan but not to the advantage of Italy. This was already evident some months ago But with Hitler's seizure of Austria, a change of the Italian position became absolutely necessary. With the Nazis in Austria, Italy has lost what she fought the World War to achieve. Once again she has armed Pan-Germanism on her frontier, and Pan-Germanism across her path in Central Europe and the Balkans. So the time had come when Mussolini had to forget the ideology of Fascism as, in 1914, he had forgotten the ideology of revolutionary syndicalism; he had to act again, as he had acted nearly twenty-five years before, as an Italian nationalist. He had to extricate his country, as he had then, from subserviency to the Pan-German advance and he had to align it again with its natural ally — the maritime power of Britain.

Agreement Can Almost Surely Be Relied Upon

Because Great Britain and Italy have had these compelling reasons for reaching an agrement the agreement they have reached can almost surely be relied upon. What they both need is essentially the same thing—a realignment of the balance of power in which Italy moves out of the camp of the aggressors and into the camp of the defenders of the status quo. For Italy, having conquered an empire without as yet subjugating it, having lost the protection of an independent Austria, is now in the same position as Britain and France. Like them, she wants to keep what she has and, like them, she has nothing futher to gain by war and everything to gain by preserving the peace.

In the abstract it is no doubt immoral to recognize the conquest of Ethiopia. But since Britain and France are not prepared to go to war to undo the conquest, there is nothing grossly immoral in accepting the accomplished fact. On the other hand, recognition means much to the Italians. For without it the Ethiopian resistance will be prolonged and there is no possibility of obtaining capital to exploit Ethiopia. Thus on Ethiopia the British have conceded much to the Italians at no real cost to themselves or, as a matter of fact, to any one else.

They have gained, on the other hand, considerable relief of the pressure on Egypt from Italian Libya and on the whole middle East from Italian agitation among the Arabs. They have reaffirmed the ancient right of Italy to use the Suez Canal, but they have greatly strengthened their power in the Red Sea. Thus even if they have not made the Mediterranean any safer as a British highway to India and the East, they have increased their power to prevent Italy or any one else from putting submarines into the Indian Ocean and threatening the route to India and the Far East by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

If Agreement Sticks It Will Show In Last

The most uncertain part of the agreement is that which concerns Spain. The British are presumably acting on certain assumptions: that, first, Franco will win, second, that in Spain Mussolini cares more for prestige than for anything else, third, that Franco must, for all kinds of reasons, make friends eventually with Britain, and fourth, that with the fall of Austria, Italy's security is so greatly impaired that Mussolini must now desire for purely Italian reasons to see a strong Britain and France in Western Europe. Whereas Mussolini once thought his interest was to strengthen Germany and to weaken Britain and France, the Austrian affair has caused him to change his mind and to want for Italy the protection of a Britain and a France that Hitler must respect.

It is some such calculation as this, one may suppose, rather than the promise to evacuate, which gives substance to the Spanish agreement. For if Italy is now compelled once more to return to her old partnership with Britain, the real danger to Europe from the Italian intervention in Spain has been liquidated.

The reality of this agreement will be tested fairly soon. If it is real, Britain and France will be able to negotiate with Germany instead of having to yield under the threat of force. If it is real, Britain will now feel secure enough in the Mediterranean to send warships to Singapore and to take step to re-establish the balance of power in the Far Pacific.

If the agreement means what is appears to mean, the effects will presently be visible in Berlin and Tokio.

President Breaks Precedent With Alliance Remark

David Lawrence Calls Statement a 'Ten-Strike for Peace'

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — For a president of the United States, or a secretary of state for that matter, to comment on a question which ordinarily would be considered "strictly European" is so unusual that its significance is bound to be discussed from one end of the diplomatic world to the other.

Lawrence

While the statement issued by Mr. Roosevelt in the last 24 hours says the United States "does not attempt to pass upon the political features of accords such as that recently reached between Great Britain and Italy," European governments will not fail to regard the very issuance of the pronouncement from the White House as a sort of roundabout approval of something which could not, for domestic political reasons here, be approved directly.

Why should America at this juncture issue any statement on the British-Italian agreement? Why should precedents of the past be broken? The chances are that American policy at the moment looks more to the preservation of peace in the world than the maintenance of any strict conformity to academic precedent.

Looked at objectively, the president's statement really means that the United Statest, in so far as it may venure to express any opinion at all, ranges itself alongside Great Britain and says, in effect, to Italy that this country has a sympathetic interest in the efforts being made by Prime Minister Chamberlain to keep the peace in Europe.

Changes Attitude

From another viewpoint, the president's declaration may also be taken to mean that the United States is sympathetic with any effort that may be made to isolate the chief trouble-maker in Europe, namely Dictator Hitler. His seizure of Austria has changed an otherwise passive attitude here. A realistic school of thought here is of the opinion that anything which may legitimately be done, even if inconsistent with past precedents, to keep Italy on the side of Great Britain and France is calculated to delay Hitler in taking the initiative toward a general European war.

There can be no doubt that the making of a public statement commenting on the Anglo-Italian agreement was fraught with considerable delicacy of approach. After all, American public opinion could hardly be said to approve the seizure of Ethiopia or the abandonment of Democratic principles in Italy itself. But expediency is often the basis of governmental policy in tangled world situations, and just now the most important thing to the United States is to do everything it can with its moral influenze to prevent the outbreak of war. Certainly the growth of world trade so sorely needed by the United States would not be served by a European war.

Sided With Allies

Even though, therefore, the president's statement would seem to be open to the inference that the United States condones the Italian invasion of Ehiopia, it is far more important that Italy be awakened to the alertness of America's interest in what she may be planning with respect to the peace of Europe. In the last war, Italy threw her fortunes to the side of the allies even though, when war broke out in 1914, she had a definite alliance with Germany and Austria which had been counted upon by the Berlin authorities to be of avail to them when war came.

Today it looks very much as if Great Britain and France are strongly wooing Italy again, and this time the United States gets into the picture early to give Rome a hint that maybe America would be better pleased if Italy stuck to her former allies.

The so-called isolationists in America will probably attack the president's statement as a meddling in strictly European affairs, whereas the international cooperationists will be glad that Mr. Roosevelt has ventured, even though in rather implicit terms, to say something on behalf of America at a critical moment in the evolution of European diplomatic policies. Sometimes these little statements, with their vague phrases, mean little to public opinion on this side of the Atlantic, but they are examined with extraordinary interest by foreign newspapers and foreign peoples.

Ambassador's Statement

There is, incidentally, in the president's statement confirmation of the points recently made by Ambassador Joseph Kennedy at London, when he said that America had by no means decided on a do-nothing policy irrespective of future contingencies and that, if the world was relying on inaction, it was mistaken On the other hand, Mr. Kennedy stated that the United States reserved the right to judge each situation as it arises and form a policy in the light of actual rather than theoretical circumstances.

The president's statement gives strength to the American ambassador's speech, for Mr. Roosevelt says almost in so many words that America will even break a precedent and give an intimation as to her sympathies in a particular situation if by so doing maintenance of the peace of Europe may be considerably aided.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement is, indeed, unprecedented, but it is a 10-strike for peace and, therefore, deserves the widest kind of approval.

Scrappy White Sox Cop From Detroit Tigers in Junior League Opener

Yanks Split Twin Bill With Boston; Browns Trip Indians

CHICAGO—(AP)—The long-clawed Detroit Tigers, despite two booming home runs, had their tails twisted 4 to 3 by the scrappy Chicago White Sox yesterday in an American league opener at Comiskey park before 18,000 spectators.

A lone run in the second inning, backed up by a three-run splurge in the fourth, more than offset the round-trip smashes by big Hank Greenberg and Chet Laabs, which came in the fifth and ninth frames with nine aboard.

Johnny Whitehead was the winning pitcher scattering nine hits before retiring in favor of Clint Brown when the Tigers threatened to get back into the game in the ninth. With the score 4-2 and one out in that frame, Laabs went to pinch-hit for pitcher George Gill and blasted a homer into the left field stands.

Roy Cullenbine singled and was forced by Dixie Walker, who went out trying to steal second, ending the battle. Roxy Lawson, who beat Chicago five times last year, was the losing pitcher, allowing six hits and all the Sox runs in the six innings he worked.

YANKS SPLIT

Boston —(AP)— The world champion New York Yankees, although gaining a split in the Patriots' Day twin bill with the Red Sox, were humbled no end yesterday by dropping a two-hit, 6 to 0 shutout in the second game after squeaking through to a 5 to 3 decision in the first.

The combined pitching of Jackie Wilson and southpaw Fritz Ostermueller turned the trick in the afternoon engagement blanking every batsman except rookie Flash Gordon, who doubled in the third off Wilson, and Frankie Crosetti, who singled in the eighth off Fritz.

A crowd of 25,000 turned out for the afternoon encounter, which was featured by the Red Sox four-run splurge in the sixth frame. Three of those tallies were accounted for by Bobby Doerr's homer with two out and two on.

In the morning game, played before a 10,000 crowd, the Sox finally solved Lefty Gomez in the eighth inning and went ahead 3-2 with a two-run rally. But young Charley Wagner walked two batters to open

Kayo Morgan Looms As Contender for Bantamweight Title

Detroit—(AP)—At 31, an age when most fighters are ready for a soft cushioned rocking chair, Kayo Morgan (Andre Esposito) today looms as a contender for the bantamweight title now held by Sixto Escobar, of Puerto Rico.

Morgan, who has been campaigning for 15 years, gave Escobar a thorough going over in a 10 round non-title battle here last night but whether he will ever get a championship shot against the Puerto Rican is doubtful.

Although Morgan won the verdict in the ring, he came out on the short end in a dressing room battle after the bout. Escobar cracked his foe on the chin with a right during the unscheduled fracas and X-rays were to be taken today to determine if Morgan's jaw was broken. Escobar charged that a running fire of chatter by Morgan during the bout in the ring included "some insulting remarks."

Brewers Weakened When Pitcher Blaeholder Becomes Ill

COLUMBUS, O. —(AP)— Pitcher Nate Andrews handcuffed the Milwaukee Brewers with five hits while his Columbus teammates hammered out an 8 to 4 victory in an American association series opener here yesterday.

The Red Birds greeted Brewer pitcher Tommy Drake with a four run barrage in the first inning and a game total of 12 base knocks.

Oscar Grimes homered for Milwaukee with a man on base in the fourth. Two singles and a long fly added another counter in the sixth. The final Brewer tally came in the ninth on a homer by Lin Storti.

The Milwaukee pitching platoon was weakened when George Blaeholder, veteran righthander, became ill and was ordered under doctors' care.

As the Minneapolis Millers faced the Louisville Colonels today in the second of their three game series, they had two ex-National leaguers to thank for snapping a three game losing streak.

LeRoy Parmelee, once of the Giants and Cardinals, and whose continued wildness sent him to the Millers from the Chicago Cubs less than a week ago, allowed only four hits in the five innings he worked yesterday. He was followed to the mound by William Watson Clark, ex-Brooklyn Dodger. Clark gave the Colonels a single safety during his four innings.

Parmelee, who was charged with one wild pitch and four walks received credit for the 10 to 4 victory.

The big guns of Toledo continued their barrage yesterday against Kansas City as the Mudhens moved up to tie the young men of Indianapolis for the league leadership. Johnny Johnson, 22 - year - old rookie, set the potent Blues down in order in six of the nine innings, as Toledo won, 7 to 2.

Today's schedule called for a resumption of competition between Kansas City and Toledo, Milwaukee and Columbus, and St. Paul and Indianapolis. The Indians lost their first game yesterday to the Saints, 5 to 3.

Suspension of Jockey May Wreck Two of Racing's Biggest Events

BY DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK—(AP)—The suspension of jockey Charley Kurtsinger threatens to throw a man-sized monkey wrench into two of racing's biggest events this spring but Kentucky Charley, the cause of it all, is optimistic.

The Brookmeade stable, big heat Charley's contract employer, slapped his wrist with a suspension Monday. Hugh Fontaine, the Brookmeade trainer, thinks it will last for 30 days, which would bar the Flying Dutchman from the Kentucky Derby in which he is scheduled to ride Hal Price Headley's Menow.

This does not agitate racing men half as much as the thought that Kurtsinger may not be able to ride War Admiral in the match race with Seabiscuit.

$100,000 At Stake

The race is for a paltry $100,000 and of course Belmont park expects to scrape up a few dimes after the race is over May 30. But with Kurtsinger, the Admiral's favorite rider out, will they run off the race? Charles S. Howard, Seabiscuit's owner, has stipulated that Jack (Red) Pollard, the Biscuit's pilot, must be on hand and there is nothing to prevent Sam Riddle from picking up his Admiral and going home if Kurtsinger doesn't get a leg up.

Kurtsinger feels he won't be "grounded" for long. "I think the whole affair will be straightened out in a couple of days," he said last night after a talk with Marshall Cassidy, one of the stewards at Jamaica. News of the suspension broke at Jamaica when the clerk of scales was notified not to accept Kurtsinger as a jockey.

Kurtsinger doesn't believe his offense, running off to Keeneland to ride Menow Saturday when Brookmeade wanted him at Jamaica, worthy of such fuss.

Otto Brothers and Vander Veldens to Do Some Pin Feudin'

Family bowlin' feudin' will break out anew at 7:30 this evening when the Otto brothers of Appleton attempt to wrest the mythical Fox river valley brothers bowling title from the Vander Velden brothers of Kimberly on the Kimberly drives.

The Otto boys, Henry, George Joe, Tony and Clarence, have been real tough like and issued a challenge "anytime, on any alleys and as soon as possible."

It all started when the Schuler brothers of Little Chute laid claim to the title and the Liethen brothers of Appleton, Bob, Andy, Frank, Al and Hank, disputed their superiority. The Liethen clan dumped the Little Chute squad and enjoyed the pin crown until the Vander Velden boys, Chub, Lyle, Urban, Elmer and Cy, came along and defeated them by a 248-pin margin.

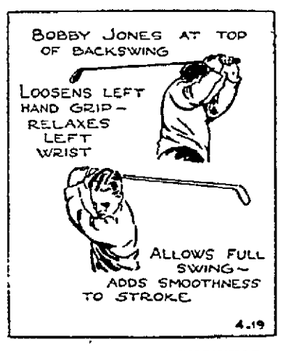
GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL



AT TOP OF BACKSWING

That pause at the top of the golf stroke so enthusiastically advocated by Lawson Little and Tommy Armour, is more than just a pause to Bobby Jones. This is the moment Bobby Jones allows the weight of the clubhead to sink below the horizontal by opening the left hand grip just a trifle. The finger grip is not allowed to relax its hold on the shaft, which keeps everything under control and the clubhead aligned correctly to the ball. The grip is only opened to the extent necessary to allow the clubhead to reach a full swing arc and then made secure again.

In addition to giving the left wrist a good deal of wrist cock by this method, the process keeps the downswing from being rushed hurriedly into the picture and bringing the clubhead down before it has reached the limit of its backstroke. This makes for greater clubhead smoothness and the downstroke thus gets underway slowly and gathers momentum gradually. Try out this formula the next time you take a practice tee shot and see if it dovetails smoothly into your stroke.

St. Paul Boxers Signed for Bouts In Menasha Ring

Five Northwest Champions Are Secured for First Twin City Card

MENASHA—The stable of amateur boxers from St. Paul, Minn. managed by Mike Gibbons, former middleweight boxer, has been signed to appear at the first boxing show to be sponsored by the Twin City Athletic club. The first show will be held Friday, evening, April 29.

Mike Gibbons is the former "Phantom" of the ring and is remembered as a great boxer. His son Jack recently turned professional. Mike is a brother of Tommy Gibbons, the heavyweight who went 15 rounds with Jack Dempsey in Montana and who is sheriff of Ramsey county, Minnesota.

Gibbons will send a team of five amateurs, all Northwest champions. The promoters are attempting to sign an equally outstanding group of opponents to make their first venture one to be remembered from a fistic standpoint.

There will be seven bouts on the card. At least one five round windup is assured in the heavyweight class. The preliminary bouts will all be for three rounds. The promoters intend to fill in two of the bouts with boxers from the valley while they have entered negotiations with Milwaukee and Chicago amateur groups to find opponents for Gibbons' fighters.

The bouts will be held in the St. Mary gymnasium at 8:30 Friday evening, April 29. The seating capacity of the gymnasium will be revised to accommodate the spectators. A raised ring will be installed.

Divide $198,000 In A. B. C. Prizes

Moline Bowler Takes $300 And Diamond Medal For Top Honors

Chicago—(AP)—They cut up a $198,000 melon today for the money players in America's bowling classic.

Top prize winner when the 38th annual American Bowling congress ended last night was Knute Anderson, of Moline, Ill. Most of the big money went to midwesterners.

Anderson took $300 in cash, a diamond medal, and the plaudits of the bowling world for toppling 746 pins to win the individual championship. His margin of victory was 21 pins.

There were 24,784 keglers after the prize during the 48 days and nights of competition on 40 gleaming drives. The number of alleys and contestants were new A. B. C. highs.

One New Record

One record score was written into the books. It was the 3,234 count amassed by the Birk Brothers Brewing company team of Chicago. The former record was 3,199 set in 1927 by the Milwaukee Tea shops.

Don Johnson and Fonnie Snyder of Indianapolis divided $500 which went to the two-man event winners. They knocked down 1,337 pins four days before the tournament ended to take the event by a two-pin margin over their fellow townsmen, Fred Mounts and Harry Wheeler.

The all-events award of $200 went to Don Beatty, 23, of Jackson, Mich. He upset predictions by holding the top rung with a 1,978 count since March 12. His margin was 19 pins.

Next year bowlers will seek A. B. C. gold and glory at Cleveland.

Vaughn's Homer Whips Cards; Giants Slaughter Bees

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Held helpless for two frames, the pennant-inspired Chicago Cubs walloped three Cincinnati pitchers yesterday, and aided by two homers, came from behind to win the National league opener here, 8 to 7, before a crowd of 34,148.

Grimm

Clay Bryant, who was belted from the box in the fourth inning, accounted for the Cubs' first scoring in the third with a home run over the left field wall, and Jimmy Collins, with a record of four out of five hits for the day, larruped the ball for another in the sixth.

Four runs on as many hits marked the Reds' big third frame and paved the way for Bryant's departure in the fourth to make way first for the veteran Charley Root and then for Bob Logan.

Held to six safeties thereafter, Bill McKechnie's men nevertheless loaded the bases in the ninth, and scored one run.

State Leaguers To Post Money

Gather Thursday Evening as Guests of New London Club

GREEN BAY— Representatives of eight clubs in the Northern State league will convene at New London Thursday night to make final arrangements for the opening of the 1938 pennant chase on Sunday, May 8.

With the schedule adopted, player contracts in the hands of the managers and the constitution revamped, the Northern State has got the stage pretty well set for a successful year on the diamond.

The main business of the New London confab will be the deposit of the $100 guarantees with John Coppes, Kaukauna, the league treasurer and President Bernard J. Neumann's huddle with his umpiring staff. All of the 10 appointees have been instructed to be on hand for the session.

Possible discussion looms over the claims for several players but a change in the league rules, allowing four instead of three outsiders' has given the managers more leeway in plugging the weak spots and the player disputes may see be ironed out without coming before the board of directors.

Raab And Clusman

Two veterans have been added to the managers' lineup as Eddie Raab will have charge of the team at Two Rivers and Norm Clusman has taken over the reins at Green Bay. Whitey Behrendt is the Kimberly pilot; Howard Bowers runs the ranch at Kaukauna and Al Borths bosses the Shipbuilders at Manitowoc.

Len Goerlinger will handle Clintonville; Billy Row is the Seymour skipper and L. P. Polaske directs the nine at New London. These three teams are the new arrivals in the Northern State this season.

Green Bay and Two Rivers were the last clubs to announce their pilots. Raab replaces Eddie Brault, third sacker, who declined to manage the Icebergs again but will continue to patrol the redlight station. Clusman steps into the post left vacant by Bob M'Clain, the scrappy backstop, who has retired. The new Sox helmsman has long been prominent in Badger baseball circles and the Green Bay fans are confident that Norm will come through with bells on.

Teams Well Dressed

According to reports, the Northern State will be one of the best 'dressed' loops in Badgerdom as at least four of the clubs will be togged out in brand new uniforms this season. Natty appearance always helps to attract the fans and orders have been issued by the directors to keep the appearance of all the teams right up to snuff.

At this point, Rufus the Red Ruffing was called on to pinch-hit for Gomez and lined a single into right center for two runs and the ball game. Lefty Grove, who started for the Sox, was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

INDIANS GET HITS, BUT LOSE

Cleveland —(AP)— Cleveland Indians got the hits in their opener yesterday but the revived St. Louis Browns got the runs and sent Johnny Allen down to a 6-2 defeat.

The Browns' four run barrage in the fifth, in which Hal Trosky aided with a two run error, meant defeat for the flashy righthander who won 15 consecutive starts last season before losing his last attempt of the year.

The Tribe outhit the Browns, 11 to 6, including a home run by Trosky in the sixth.

America OUT-OF-DOORS

SPRING FISHING
By Harold C. Hollis

WE anglers are usually compensated for the tedium of the long winter by excellent fishing that we enjoy at the beginning of the season. No matter what fish we are after, he is nearly always ready to hit on opening day.

April sees the opening of the trout season in many states and by May 15 our favorite fish is legal game everywhere. It is in these two months that we get some of our best fishing, even though we may have to use live bait.

In the early season streams are generally high and discolored. Fish are generally feeding near the bottom since most of their food consists of insect larvae dislodged by the water. Sometimes, however, when the weather is favorable there may be some insects flitting about and the fish will take these. Last year on the second day of the season I took several trout on wet flies.

If the streams are high the trout will be scattered and will be found in places where they would not be in mid-summer. It is, therefore, advisable to fish slowly and overlook no water that could possibly harbor a trout.

Anglers who fish the Brule and other rivers that flow into Lake Superior enjoy a unique kind of early fishing. It is at this time that the large rainbows which spend most of their time in the lake are in the rivers. Live bait, streamer flies and spinners are the favorite lures and each year many fish above five pounds and nearly always a few in the 10-pound class are taken.

The early season, from the time the ice goes out until about mid-June, is one of the two periods of the year when the fly rod fisherman gets a chance at the lake trout. At this time and in the late fall the surface water is cold enough for the laker and he is found in the shallows. Taken with a fly rod or a casting rod the laker is one of the best of fresh water fighters. The principal lake trout regions are northern Minnesota, Ontario and Lake Superior, a recent field of operations but which has produced some noteworthy fish.

The season for wall-eyed and northern pike opens in May. The early season is doubtless the best time for both of these fishes and they can be taken at almost any hour of the day. Wisconsin is the only one of the important muskellunge states in which the tiger can be legally taken in May. Most other states and the Ontario provinces have a July 1 opening. Guides say that the May muskie fishing is the best of the entire season.

The season on black bass does not open until late June or July due to the fact that this fish spawns later than the others. If you catch a bass during May or early June, and it is quite likely that you will while casting for pike, be sure to let him go. The reason he hit your lure so readily is that he was protecting his spawn bed. Were he removed the spawn or the small fishes would be at the mercy of marauding pike and perch. It is only good sportsmanship and good conservation sense to avoid the bass spawning places so far as possible and to release all fish accidentally taken.

GIANTS WALLOP BEES

New York —(AP)— Long, lean, lop-eared Cliff Melton started the Giants in the direction of their third straight National league pennant here this perfect afternoon by swarming over the Boston Bees, 13-1.

Taking up the pitching job where tubby and swarthy little Mayor La Guardia in a blue baseball hat had left off, Melton coasted along on the crest of a vigorous Giant attack that featured three home runs.

But the big yell from the mob of 45,000 was not for Melton or for the homering Dick Bartell, Mel Ott or Johnny McCarthy. None other than George Herman Ruth, who quit the Bees sometime back because their schedule interfered with his sight-seeing, brought the lustiest howl from the mob.

Just before the game the Bambino presented Billy Terry with an insignia of the New York World Fair which all New York teams are advertising on their uniform sleeves this year. Broader and beefier than ever, Ruth stole the show from the mayor, Grover Whalen and the latter day athletes, all of whom followed the great man's steps as if they were about to ask him for his autograph.

HAMLIN CREDITED WITH WIN

Philadelphia, — (AP) — Although their ace fireballer, Van Lingle Mungo, wasn't around to see the finish of the proceedings, the Brooklyn Dodgers got off to a slugging start in the National league wars yesterday by walloping the Phillies, 12 to 5, with a 15 hit barrage.

They landed on Lefty LaMaster, Hugh Mulcahy, Al Smith and Pete Sivess from time to time during the game for 30 bases, finally putting the decision on ice with a six run attack in the eighth. Mungo lasted through the fourth inning and Luke Hamlin, taking over in the fifth, took credit for the victory.

Wrigley Declares Dean's Arm Still In Perfect Shape

Los Angeles—(AP)—Take it from P. K. Wrigley, who backs up his statements with cash, Dizzy Dean's pitching arm still is a winner.

He said so today, at his Catalina island home, in discussing the deal by which his Chicago Cubs bought Dean from the St. Louis Cardinals.

"We're preparing for a long haul in baseball and felt Dean was the pitcher we needed.

"No, we haven't taken out a cent of insurance on Dizzy. Dean's investment to the Cubs is one of service. The protection insurance would afford us wouldn't matter. What we want is a winning ball club.

"The Cubs have just spent a million dollars in improving Wrigley field.

"I can't see what good it is to spend all this money if we can't improve the product we are selling, namely baseball. That's why we bought Dean.

"We know Dean is in perfect physical trim and expect him to be a winner."

15 Schools Enter Relays at Beloit

Event to be Staged on One Of Most Modern Tracks in Country

Beloit—The second annual Beloit college relays to be held Friday evening, May 6 already supports a field of 15 colleges and Director Louis E. Means expects several more entries in his office at the end of this week. The new Walter Strong Memorial stadium, scene of this great track classic, maintains one of the most modern track layouts in the United States. An excellent conditioned cinder runway, new field facilities, the latest type of flood lighting, and a $3,000 public address system all help to make up this modernistic college stadia.

Beautiful plaques will be awarded to each winning relay team as will medals to the winners of first, second, and third in the individual events. The plaques will be enlarged duplicates of the individual medals. The medals will be of bronze and will have Strong stadium as the background. Above this is pictured the passing of a baton between two relay men and below the inscription, "Beloit Relays" Two oak leaves symbolize victory and strength. Ribbons will be presented to members of the first three placing relay teams and to victors of the first five places in the individual events.

Next week students of Beloit college will elect a queen and her court who will hand out awards to the victors. A full 30 minutes will be devoted to an exotic display of pageantry, far surpassing the 1937 exhibition.

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Think of the Colonial Dames and how they depended upon powdered wigs to romanticize their hair. How obviously artificial and how completely lacking in individuality. Today we emphasze our own coloring, or if we are dissatisfied with the shade Nature gave us we, too, call on artifice. But that artifice is quite different because the final result looks so natural that even a trained eye cannot detect any difference.

Think of the women of Grandmother's day, who were born with straight hair or curly and the nearest the straight haried ones ever came to curls was when they put their hair up in painful papers twisted, tied and slept on night in, night out. Today we depend upon the permanent to change the shape of the hair from straight locks to lovely waves.

Now, think of all the other features and phases of the beauty ensemble and see how many reasons you can name for keeping your hair at the top of the list of beauty assets.

More Than Four Reasons

Nature assigns a given color to your eyes. There's no changing that color. But you can change the color of your hair and do it artfully and beautifully.

Nature gives your nose a definite shape and while you can change it the plastic surgery operation is a delicate and expensive one. But a permanent wave will change your hair from straight strings to soft curls.

There are at least four reasons why your hair should be at the top of the list. It is one feature that every woman can boast about, can make as beautiful as she wills . . . there are no limitations put there by an unkind fate. You can literally take your hair into your own hands. There's color, shape, sheen and finally style. With proper care you can make thin hair thicker and you can have too heavy hair thinned out; with proper styling you can apparently change the shape of your face and some of your features; you can emphasize or change your type; with a good permanent you can acquire soft curls and with rinses or tints you can make mousy, drab, unnoticed hair so colorful and interesting that others will not only notice, they will admire it.

Also I have a complete booklet on Care of the Hair (Booklet 203) which is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to The Bell Library, care this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

Bid of Four No Trump is Unwarranted

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I send you another hand taken from the Alabama state pair championship. The argument this time is whether the conventional four no trump bid ever should be 'taken with a grain of salt' by the supposed responder.

"East, dealer.
"North-South vulnerable.
"Match-point scoring.

SOUTH

"The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 heart	Pass	2 no trump
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	4 no trump
Pass	5 no trump	Pass	6 hearts

"After the smoke had cleared away, and while erstwhile defenders were exchanging gleeful grins over their score that probably would be a-top, north and South got into a ferocious argument. North contended that if South had had any sense he would have passed to the four no trump bid, even though admittedly North and South were using the four-five no trump convention. South claimed that partnership understanding and adherence to conventions made a five no trump response mandatory, that he was merely obeying orders as conveyed by North. What is the answer?

"Yours truly,
"J. D. B., Anniston, Ala."

I agree with South that a conventional four no trump bid allows the responder no latitude, that he must either respond with five no trump, bid an ace ,or sign off, according to his own holding. Thus, technically speaking, South was correct. All the same, however, if I were playing with a partner who made the two bids that North made, namely, two no trump, and then four no trump, I probably would refuse to respond because I would know that my partner had made a grievous error in one of his two bids. Because there is no such bidding as North delivered in this hand! Two no trump is a strong bid in response to an opening suit bid of one, but still is limited in its scope. It is a game force but it is a slam-try only if the original bidder can take constructive action. Since South's rebid over two no trump was only three hearts, it was utterly illogical for North then to jump to four no trump. As a matter of fact, North's only correct bid over three hearts was four hearts. There was no sense in persisting with no trump, despite the 4-3-3-3 distribution.

Any just verdict would attach the blame for the terrible result to North. But, I reiterate, if I had been South I would have been certain that my partner's bidding was illogical and, hence, unsound. Therefore, I would have "backed out of the picture" at the earliest possible moment.

As a matter of fact, even four hearts would have required excellent play. Presumably West would open the diamond king and declarer should allow it to hold. A diamond continuation would be won with the ace and two rounds of trumps would disclose the fact that East had a sure trump trick. Declarer then should ruff dummy's losing diamond, cash the three spades, then lead the ace and a low club. East would be unable to unblock. It would do him no good to throw the king on the ace since he still would have to win the second club with the jack. After cashing the heart queen he would have to lead either a spade or diamond, thus giving declarer a ruff and a discard.

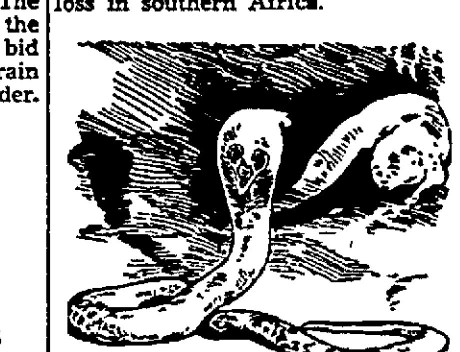
The Cobra and the Mongoose

The Cobra does not have many friends. It is one of the world's most deadly snakes, and it causes great loss of life in India, also some loss in southern Africa.



A mongoose in a fight with a cobra. (From a photograph.)

Perhaps we may call some snake charmers "friends" of the cobra. At least they tame this snake, and make money by showing their powers over it.

As far as other people go, there is a general hatred of the cobra. This animal—which has the power of spreading its neck into a kind of hood—is feared, and that is why it is hated. It does not rush to attack people, but if someone steps on it, or too near it, there is a sudden blow, and its fangs are fastened in human flesh. Unless quick action is taken the person dies in a short time.

The black cobra sometimes grows to a length of six feet or more. It is only one of several kinds found in India. It is estimated that from 15,000 to 20,000 persons die in India each year from bites of these serpents.

Rearing its head, a hungry cobra goes forth to get a meal. It looks for frogs and small furry animals. It can swim well, and can climb trees. In the trees it often robs birds' nests of eggs or baby birds.

As it crawls along the ground, the cobra sometimes comes upon a little animal known as a mongoose. Since the mongoose is only about 15 inches long not counting the tail, we might expect the snake to be glad to see it—but that is far from the case!

The mongoose is an enemy, and a fierce enemy. It isn't afraid of the cobra, and goes right after it!

With head raised high, and its neck spread wide, the cobra hisses with all its might. Up comes the little champion Nature has made to fight cobras.

With power and speed the snake strikes, but the mongoose is no longer where it was! It knows how to dodge the deadly blow. Time and again it may dodge blows, but sooner or later it is likely to sink its sharp teeth in the neck or head of the cobra.

Once in a while, the cobra does strike home and kill the mongoose, but far more often, it is the other way around. The mongoose (also spelled "mungoose") is an expert fighter.

Because it kills mice, rats and deadly snakes, the mongoose has been imported by people in certain places where it seemed to be needed. Years ago, some of the animals were obtained by owners of sugar plantations on the island of Jamaica. The special purpose was to rid the fields of rats.

The mongooses did the work well. They killed thousands and thousands of rats. Then came a time when they couldn't find enough rats or other wild game to feed on. Being hungry, they turned to the poultry roosts, and killed a great many chickens and other fowls.

Children With Poor Voices Should Be Allowed to Sing

BY ANGELO PATRI

"I don't think I'm going to school in the morning."

"Why, Elizabeth! And I thought that you loved kindergarten."

"I did once, but not now. Anyway, I don't guess I'll feel so well in the morning."

"Expect to have a pain in your little finger nail, Betty?"

Elizabeth examined the small member carefully. "No, I don't guess so, but maybe I will have a headache."

"Why?"

"I think maybe the music teacher will come."

"But you like to sing."

"Yes, I do, but she don't like me to sing. She says, 'You little girl with the curly hair and the pink bow, stop singing.' That was me. First I didn't know she meant me. So Miss Ethel said to me to stop, and so I stopped. And then the music teacher came over to me and she said, 'Sing Jack and Jill went up the hill like the way I do.' And I did and she said, mean-like, 'You're a marrow-bone. Don't sing any more unless I tell you to.' So I guess tomorrow maybe I won't feel so well and I'll just stay home and rest up."

"Maybe she won't go to school tomorrow."

"Maybe she will. I don't know. She can come anytime she likes because she is bigger than Miss Ethel."

"I see. What was it the teacher called you?"

"She said, 'Stop singing. You're a marrow-bone.'"

"Hm. I don't see anything bony about you, my dear."

"Maybe it's a sickness. That's why I know I won't feel so good in the morning."

"Suppose I call Miss Ethel and ask her what the teacher meant, and find out about the music teacher and everything."

"All right if you do. I'm beginning to feel kind of bad right now."

The kindergarten teacher listened to mother's story and then she laughed so loudly that Elizabeth heard her where she sat on the sofa feeling so bad.

"The music teacher comes in twice a year to test the children's voices, that's all. She won't be back until next term. Elizabeth is a monotone, so the teacher stopped her singing. She wanted to hear the others. It is too bad Elizabeth was worried. Please tell her that she sings nicely and that monotone does not mean anything bad. It just means she sings without ups and down in her voice. When she is older she will have them and the music teacher will be delighted."

"M-m-m, but she did call me a marrow-bone and made me stop singing. If she isn't coming back I don't care. Can I sing?"

Little children should sing with the group even if they do not sing in harmony. Children sing for the joy of singing, not for the pleasure of the audience. That comes later. And it is unwise to pin a label of any sort, good, bad, indifferent on a child. In the first place they hurt children's feelings and sadden their spirits. Music is to gladden them. Never mind if they are not nightingales.

Middle-Aged Get Decrees When Patience Exhausted

BY DOROTHY DIX

Why do so many middle-aged men and women get divorces nowadays? Why do so many husbands and wives who have worked together to make their fortune; who have reared a family of children and who have apparently lived in peace and amity, suddenly break the tie that has bound them together for a quarter of a century or more?

DOROTHY DIX

We were discussing this new phase of the divorce question the other day, and a woman said: "It is incomprehensible. I can understand how the young, who lack patience and discipline and who think that life should be handed them on a silver salver wreathed with roses, can rush off to the divorce court just because their mates have ceased to fire their fancies, or failed to measure up to their ideals, but I can't understand why a man and woman who have lived together for twenty-five or thirty years can't go on and finish the journey together.

"You would think that in that length of time they would have become so much inured to each other's faults and peculiarities that they would have got so that they hardly noticed them, and that they would have developed some sort of working technique of getting along together. You would think that after having been yokemates for so long each would be lost without the other and that nothing would make them separate."

"Perhaps the reason that they DO part is because they HAVE endured each other for twenty-five years and have come to the point where they can't stand it another minute," said another woman "Their resistance has worn out. Their fortitude is exhausted. Their nerves are frazzled out, and they feel it is Reno or death with them.

"Can't you imagine a man who is married to a dull, stupid woman who has bored him to tears for twenty-five years feeling that if he has to stand one more deadly, long, tiresome evening with her that he will be taken away screaming to a psychopathic ward? Can't you realize how a man married to a nagger who has threshed over the same grievance and told him three times a day how bad everything he liked to eat was for his stomach feels that it has got to be divorce or murder?

Can't you understand how a woman who is married to an arguer, or a grouch, or a chronic objector gets so fed up with yes-yesing him and trying to get along with him that she just throws up her hands and quits? And can't you imagine why the wife of the philanderer or the drunkard wants to call it a day and take a rest after she has forgiven him for years and years? Human nature, even woman's brand of human nature, can stand about so much and then it cracks. And twenty-five years is a pretty long spell of misery for anybody to endure."

"One of the reasons why so many middle-aged people get divorces," said a third woman, "is because thousands of uncongenial husbands and wives stay together in order to make a home for their children until they are grown and on their feet. They are among the heroes and the martyrs of the world."

"Still another reason," said the fourth woman, "why there is so much divorce among the middle-aged is because it is a last frantic grab at love and romance and happiness by the mismated. So many good, fine men and women are so bitterly unhappy in their marriages. Maybe they married too young and one outgrew the other. Maybe a warmhearted, affectionate man or woman has a human icicle for a wife or husband. Maybe they are just temperamentally uncongenial and incompatible.

"They endure these marriages, hoping while they are young that some miracle will happen that will change their mates nearer to their hearts' desire. Then they fall into a kind of apathy of misery that makes them carry on because they are too sunk to even rebel against their fates. Then, suddenly, they wake up. They realize that youth is nearly gone and that if they are ever to have any joy of life, any love or companionship, even any peace, they must secure it for themselves now.

"Those who have stood years and years of an unhappy marriage can't face the prospect of more years of unhappiness. And that is why so many middle-aged couples get divorces."

FURNISHING

Dear Mrs. Post: Should the cellophane wrappers be left on lamp shades? I have been under the impression that they were put there to keep the shade clean until it had finally found a permanent home away from the store shelves, but a friend insists that it should be left on. This does seem reasonable because it protects a light colored shade and naturally will prolong its life. And yet the shiny surface seems to make the lamp cast a cold looking light. What is the answer?

Answer: Properly, the cellophane cover is taken off because it was put on simply to protect the shade when handled in the store. On the other hand, if you like the looks of the cellophane on the shade, there is no reason why you should not leave it on.

Dear Mrs. Post: In the days when I was young, the family living-room seemed always to have a generous table in the center of the room, on which was a reading lamp and books and magazines, and sure as not mother's work-basket of sewing. Today one never sees a table stood in the center of the room. Will you please tell me whether it is no longer fashionable to have family group arrangements.

Answer: The first essential in furnishing a house is that it shall be pleasing to those who live in it. If you like to sit around a table in the evenings, as all our grandparents did, then do so by all means. It is true that today rooms are not usually furnished with tables in the center; it is also true that I myself was probably instrumental in encouraging the vanishing of the center table. This was only because so few families of today like to sit around a table, and when the table is not to be used it makes blunt blockading furnishing. In other words, its presence or its absence is entirely a question of its serviceability.

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to have our marriage license framed and if I do, what kind of frame do you suggest and where may this be hung?

Answer: Certainly have it framed if you want to, most suitably in a plain narrow binding of black or brown wood although it could be anything you like that is untrimmed and narrow. Hang it in the bedroom unless you have a small library or sitting-room apart from the room in which you receive general company.

To cook dandelion greens: Select tender, young greens. Wash them well and cover them with cold water . Add a fourth of a teaspoon of salt for each cup of water. Allow the greens to boil gently—uncovered — for fifteen minutes. Drain and serve them with salt, pepper and a bit of vinegar.

Save your flower seed packages to use as home decorations. Cut out the pictures of flowers and paste them on cupboard door corners, kitchen chair-backs or spice cans. Shellac over the cutouts to preserve them.

My Neighbor Says—

If ecru curtains become faded after repeated washes they may be retinted by adding a clear solution of tea to the last rinse water. The quantity of tea used depends upon the desired shade of cream or ecru. Usually a wet fabric is twice as deep in color as the dry one will be.

Boiled frosting, if not cooked enough so that it will spread on cake, may be cooked over again or powdered sugar may be added until it is of the right consistency to spread. Use double boiler when cooking frosting over

Old Gardener Says:

With shrubs alone it is possible to have an almost uninterrupted succession of bloom from frost to frost, although perhaps this involves too large a planting for small gardens. At the beginning of the season there come certain of the azaleas, particularly Schlippenbachi and Poukhanense, both of which probably have names that are unfamiliar to the ears of the average amateur, but which are obtainable from nurseries and have much to recommend them besides the fact that they blossom before the frosts are over. Both come from the other side of the world, both are hardy, and the former grows fairly tall. These two azaleas are bound to be widely grown when they become better known, particularly in gardens where spring flowers are prized.

Doudna Warns High School Students Against Trying Marijuana, Alcohol

Neenah—Deploring the use of marijuana and alcohol, the two great disadvantages facing youth today which weren't problems a score of years ago, H. E. Doudna, Madison, executive secretary of the board of normal school regents, in a talk to Neenah High school students Tuesday mornnig said that these two narcotics not only cause the death of thousands of people in the United States each year but send young men and women to penitentiaries who otherwise wouldn't be there had they not used them.

Doudna warned the students not to try alcohol and marijuana even for an experiment, stating that "if you want to experiment get a box of rattlesnakes; they are less dangerous."

"Youths smoke and eat marijuana and drink alcohol for two reasons: They wish to show off and to forget themselves and their problems", he said. He advised the students to indulge in reading, athletics, hobbies, entertainment and work if they need to find ways out of their problems.

Doudna also warned the students not to pay attention to those people who always are deprecating the period in which they live, lamenting the fact that conditions are in such a bad state that they have no chance, and he cited the advantages students today have over those of years ago.

"We all have better opportunities today which means we have to work harder, be exact and physically fit so that all our faculties will be alert and working. We are living in a fast age and have to go faster in order to get anywhere," he declared.

Mayor of Oshkosh Outlines Building Program for 1938

Asks Aid of Building Trades to Lower Construction Costs

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh—Outlining an ambitious program for 1938, Mayor C. A. Wiechering in one of the shortest council meetings on record told the incoming alderman of the condition of the city and warned them not to contract debts that must be paid for by future generations.

E. J. Robinson, Fifteenth ward veteran alderman, was elected president of the council after a 3-way contest with Aldermen H. H. Priebe and C. M. Boller. The final vote, after Alderman Boller withdrew, was Robinson 19 and Priebe 13.

Listing things that Oshkosh ought to accomplish, Mayor Wiechering mentioned new codification of city ordiances, an ordinance with "teeth" to bond new business, purchasing the athletic field, settle the municipal airport problem, build a new baseball diamond on 'made' ground near the incinerator, establish city civil service, as well as enter into a large building program.

Under building, Mayor Wiechering asked the aid of the building trades to lower costs and urged a south side junior high school, two new fire stations, two new bandstands as well as a grandstand in the municipal ball park with possibility of a municipal auditorium and recreation center. The old courthouse and site has been considered for this last.

Commended Aldermen

Mayor Wiechering also asked the cooperation of all the aldermen, urging them to forget petty differences, and publicly commended Alderman Walter Tank and Alderman Carl R. Robertson for aid in settling the recent strike at the new courthouse.

The mayor also pointed out that Oshkosh city affairs were in excellent shape with about 1,100 unemployed and with a relief load of about $23,000 per month. This cost would be about $60,000 a month if aid was not forthcoming from the works progress administration, he said.

Ending his talk before the election for council president, Mayor Wiechering stressed the 'unwritten law' that governments must not contract debts without providing a sinking fund, so that future generations will not be saddled with the bill.

A meeting will be held Friday night to make the routine city appointments.

3 New Men Named To School Board By City Council

Dr. Shemanski Chosen City Physician; Other Officials Reappointed

Menasha — Three new members to the board of education were appointed by the new council at its organization meeting Tuesday night. The new members are Joe Reilly, Second ward; Arthur Scholl, Fourth ward and R. M. Woodhead, Third ward. William Kellett was reappointed in the Fifth ward. A crowd of nearly 150 thronged the council chamber to watch the proceedings.

Dr. L. S. Shemanski was appointed city physician for two years to succeed Dr. J. P. Skibba while all other appointive officers were returned to their posts by the council.

Before the old council adjourned sine die, Mayor W. E. Held expressed his appreciation to the aldermen, the city clerk and attorney, members of the various boards and to his supporters. He offered his services to the city at any time that he could be of use in any of the projects which started under his term of office. Held in particular cautioned the new council to arrange enough WPA projects to carry through the winter to keep the relief load down.

On taking the chair and calling the council to order, Mayor W. H. Jensen said, "The time has come for action." He expressed appreciation to his supporters and for the flowers which were placed at the mayor's desk and in front of each of the new aldermen.

" Time for Action"

The new mayor stated that the situation needed 10 men and the mayor to get behind the wheel for action. "I have no axe to grind—no chip on my shoulder. I am willing to cooperate," Jensen said.

Before the council started to ballot on members of the school board Jensen reminded them that the board of education was one of the most important jobs. He called attention to the meeting of the board of education of Feb. 19 at which the school building was accepted from the architects.

Although the meeting was called to inspect the building, no inspection was made, according to Mayor Jensen, and the building was accepted by a four to one vote. He had been voting "no" for six years he said. Reminding the council that children were the biggest job in the city today, Mayor Jensen asked the council to consider whether the board had fulfilled its duty and to vote accordingly.

The informal ballot for member of the school board from the Second ward resulted in six votes for Joe Reilly and four for Lloyd Day, incumbent. The formal ballot resulted in a tie but Mayor Jensen immediately cast his vote for Reilly.

Kellett Reelected

Art Scholl was elected to the school board to succeed W. J. Jensen from the Fourth ward on the first formal ballot. He polled six votes to four for J. Leibel. Geibel and Max Novakofski, who had received votes on the informal ballot, received no votes on the formal ballot. William Kellett was reelected to the board from the Fifth ward on the first formal ballot. He had six votes to four for Dr. F. M. Corry.

The longest contest of the evening occurred in the selection of a board member to fill the unexpired term of C. E. Pierce, president of the board, who has moved from the Third ward. On the first formal ballot R. M. Woodhead received five votes, R. M. Sensenbrenner received three and Dr. G. N. Pratt received two.

There was little change until the ninth ballot when Dr. Pratt lost his support and Woodhead and Sensenbrenner tied with five each. After five tie votes Alderman M. J. Grode asked Mayor Jensen to break the tie but the mayor refused. Alderman C. J. Oberweiser suggested that a coin be flipped but the two candidates demurred. On the fourteenth vote, which was a tie, Mayor Jensen cast his ballot for Woodhead.

Walter J. Daugherty, city clerk; Theodore Beach Jr., bookkeeper; Peter Kasel, street superintndent; A. E. McMahon, city engineer; and H. O. Haugh, city health officer, were all reelected unanimously on the first formal ballots. Kasel was elected street superintendent for the twenty-fifth successive time. On the informal ballot Bert Finch received one vote for street superintendent while Vernon Gruper received two votes for health officer on the informal ballot.

McKenzie Wins

Edward C. McKenzie was reelected city attorney on the first ballot on which he received six votes; M. F. Crowley received three and Silas Spengler received one. Dr. Shemanski received nine votes on the informal ballot for city physician to one for Dr. Skibba. On the formal ballot Shemanski received seven and Skibba three. The terms of the health officer and city physician are for two years.

A minor contest developed in the selection of three bridge tenders for the Mill street bridge although the three who served last year were reelected. They are Frank Heroux, Alvin Stratton and Carl Meyer. Heroux was elected on the first ballot while Stratton was elected with nine votes on the third ballot. Meyer was also elected on the third ballot when he received six votes to four for Frank Kopp.

Alderman M. J. Grode was reelected president of the council on the second ballot. After a tie on the first ballot, Grode received six votes to four for Alderman Philip Michalkiewicz.

The council adopted a resolution calling for bonding of various city officials and setting the terms of office.

Be A Safe Driver

Ripon Dean Advocates Better Reading Guidance

Neenah—"Within our own cultural time, we are shutting the doors on our cultural heritage: our students coming into college from high schools, don't know the Bible, don't know Greek mythology, haven't adequate vocabularies, and don't know how to read," was the indictment made by Jean J. Clark Graham, Ripon college, in a discussion of "Literary Criticism" at the 2:30 Tuesday afternoon meeting of the Woman's Tuesday club, as he declared: "If you appreciate fine things in literature, have the courage to say so. I commend to you the high calling of intelligent criticism."

Dean Graham urged individual appraisal of literature by answers to two questions 'what is the author trying to do' and 'did he do it and how successfully was it done', as he pointed out that while it was easy to complain, it was hard to criticize intelligently.

Advocating reading under guidance of expert critics in order to build the best kind of a mental structure, Dean Graham pointed out that such a program necessitated a selection of a critic to whom to listen, a difficult task in itself.

Following the listing of 22 different purposes of literature which have been presented, Dean Graham presented thumbnail sketches of the chief types of literary criticism today. He classified expressionistic as the least important as it was the projection of the critics' own personality and ideas in a separate independent work of art, very egocentric and highly subjective. The second type, impressionistic, stays a little nearer the book being criticized but is also similar to the first. The historical type leans heavily on learning as the critic trys to show where the author stands in traditions, how he reflects the economic and political age. It is a talking too much about everything but literature.

Racial Type

The racial type of criticism endeavors to interpret the genius of literature in terms of race, climate and temper. The biographical or psychological, or combination type, is presented by a critic who has dabbled a little in psychoanalysis and knows enough about it so that he doesn't know how little he really knows. As examples of this type of literary criticism, Dean Graham cited Ludwig Lewisohn's biography of Walt Whitman and Edgar Lee Masters' biography of Mark Twain. He pointed out that he believed that a work of art, once created and given to the public, is a think within itself and not a part of the author's personal life and he gave examples to document his statement.

"Another school of criticism is propaganda," said Dean Graham, "and is for the most part founded on the doctrine of Carl Marx. The critics are so obsessed with some social theory that all their art is colored by it." He mentioned Granville Hicks and Kenneth Burke as men of this school.

"It seems to me that propaganda has no place whatever in art," said Dean Graham, "The minute one allows that element to come into art, it makes for dated work and by that very dating, it is dead work and never can be immortal."

'Must Write Truly'

"One must write sanely, truly; because life in truth is ethical, one's writing will be moral," said Dean Graham as he discussed critics who offend, citing Faulkner, Robinson Jeffries and others, as exploiters of immorality in order to shock the public to gain a hearing.

Censorship as a type of literary criticism was not advocated by Dean Graham either as he commented on the inconsistency of censorship when books are forbidden because of a certain approach while pulp magazines which are "rotten from cover to cover, are allowed to saturate the minds of boys and girls generation after generation."

hTe final type of criticism discussed by Dean Graham was humanism, started by Irving Babbitt of Harvard university, which leans very strongly on tradition, wholesomeness in life, tolerance, and the importance of form as well as subject matter. Humanism is not only a method of literary criticism to its advocates but a way of life," a satisfaction of normal human desires controlled so as to approximate an ideal which the experiences of the race have found to be productive of lasting happiness."

"Critics fall in two classes", said Dean Graham, "the classicists, advocating restraint, balance and proportion, and the romanticists, who are subjective, passionate, volatile, believers in less consideration to form."

He suggested several books for study of the various types of criticism and urged individual appraisal.

Menasha Council Extends Term of Office for Clerk

Will be Removed Only by Three-Fourths Vote Of City Council

Menasha— The council last night extended the term of office of the city clerk until his removal by the council. The ordinance will take effect May 1 following publication. Under the terms of the ordinance the city clerk can be removed at any time by the council but a three-fourths vote is necessary.

The council also considered an ordinance making the city clerk's job an elective one but rejected that proposal. Walter J. Dougherty was reelected city clerk unanimously by the new council.

The petition of Truman T. Wanty for a class B tavern license at 287 Tayco street was denied by a unanimous vote of the council. Alderman Earl Sauter moved that the application be denied, expressing the opinion that the city had more than enough taverns now. A tavern previously had been operated at the location by Kenneth P. Pakalski.

Six bids offering the city road oil for prices ranging from 4.44 cents to 4.75 cents per gallon all were rejected as were five bids to purchase the machine shop and boiler room at the old high school site.

Sidewalk Petitions

Two petitions requesting installation of sidewalk were received and referred to the new council One was for sidewalk on the south side of Lisbon avenue from Tayco street to the railroad and the other was for sidewalk on the north side of Eighth street from Tayo street to Milwaukee street. The water and light department was ordered to install a water main on Ninth street from Tayco street east approximately 300 feet.

The firm of Northrup and Friedland called the attention of the council to the advantage of bonding all city employes under a corporate surety bond. The matter was also referred to the incoming council.

The city attorney was authorized to attend the mid-year meeting of the attorney's section of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities. The meeting will be held April 22 at Madison. The resignation of W. H. Jensen from the board of education was accepted by the council and thanks were extended to Mr. Jensen for his services by the council.

Bond Accepted

The bond of Arthur J. Ales, justice of the peace, was accepted on recommendation of Edward C. McKenzie, city attorney. A bill of $350 by R. E. DeLong, architect, in connection with the construction of the stadium was allowed.

Alderman Ed Zeininger questioned Mayor Held concerning several petitions on curb and gutter The mayor explained that a project was drawn up and approved by the WPA a year ago. However the project was held in abeyance because of the winter season. A work order has been requested and the project probably can be started soon. Mayor Held recommended that the city take advantage of all possible similar construction as the property owner must pay only for the cost of materials used by the city.

Following the closing speech of Mayor W. E. Held, the council adjourned sine die on motion of Clement Newcomb. Mr. Held pinned the mayor's badge on his successor, Mayor W. H. Jensen. A period of handshaking, congratulations and best wishes, as well as condolences, followed.

Supporters of Mayor W. H. Jensen presented him with a huge bouquet of flowers while smaller bouquets were placed in front of the newly-elected aldermen, Reuben Tuchscherer, First ward; William J. Karrow, Third ward; John R. Scanlon, Fourth ward, and Walter O'Brien, Fifth ward. Alderman Earl Sauter was reelected in the Second ward.

Take Action to Revert Strip of Land at Neenah

Council Plans to Abandon Property Bordering Lake Street

Neenah — Action to revert a 16-foot strip of city owned land on S. Lake street from Main to Adams street between the street and private property to the property owners was taken by the city council at a meeting last night at the city hall when Alderman Carl Loehning's motion to request the property owners to petition for a hearing on the reversion or the city council to arrange a hearing itself was adopted.

The purpose of immediate action on the reversion is to include S. Lake street in the summer sidewalk installation program. The council at its first meeting in April indicated it would abandon the land when it adopted a 50-foot thoroughfare on S. Lake street. The plan to widen the street which originated when the street was included in the state highway system was abandoned, the thoroughfare no longer being included in the highway system.

Alderman J. A. Heigl told the council that property owners are anxious to have sidewalks installed on the street and assured the council that a petition for the hearing would be submitted soon.

Sidewalks already installed on the street which will not correspond to the present width of the thoroughfare will be replaced by the city.

The council indicated it would take action soon on the proposed bicycle licensing ordinance when Alderman Robert Martens sought enforcement by arrests of the present city ordinance, especially in cases where cyclists ride on the sidewalks.

The committee on parks and public buildings was instructed to meet with the chairmen of the towns of Neenah and Menasha to determine whether Neenah has a suitable place to house fire fighting equipment which the two towns plan to purchase jointly.

Jensen Appoints New Committees Of City Council

Oberweiser Urges Menasha Aldermen to Attend All Meetings

Menasha — Committee appointments were announced by Mayor W. H. Jensen at the meeting of the new council at the city hall Tuesday night. The appointments were approved by the council.

Alderman Reuben Tuchscherer, C. J. Oberweiser and John R. Scanlon were appointed to the finance committee while Alderman Philip Michalkiewicz will head the street committee. Others on the street committee are M. J. Grode, George Eckrich, Edward Zeininger and C. J. Oberweiser.

The board of public works will consist of Mayor W. H. Jensen; M. J. Grode, president of the council; the chairmen of the finance and street committees, Reuben Tuchscherer and Philip Michalkiewicz; City Engineer A. E. McMahon and Edward McKenzie, city attorney.

Other standing committee appointments by the mayor included:

Printing — Aldermen Walter O'Brien, William J. Karrow and Philip Michalkiewicz.

Police — Aldermen C. J. Oberweiser, Philip Michalkiewicz and John R. Scanlon.

Holds Board to Five

Members of the city boards whose terms expire were reappointed by Mayor Jensen and approved by the council. Because he felt that a five-man commission was large enough, Mayor Jensen appointed no one to the park board. The term of Jacob Leibel expires while Urban Remmel has moved away to reduce the number to five. The five are Peter Borenz, T. M. Gilbert, George Banta, Jr., Louis Ellinger and James Whelan.

V. M. Landgraf was reappointed to the board of appeals for a five-year term while Ray J. Fink and Mrs. D. T. MacKinnon were reappointed to the library board.

Alderman C. J. Oberweiser urged the members of the council to attend all meetings, whether regular, special or meetings of standing committees or committee of the whole. Because the city has no money for extra expenditures he suggested that all petitions be numbered and filed away. Then when it becomes possible to grant the requests he suggested that they be handled in that order. He also urged that the standing committee chairmen organize their committees and pleaded for better cooperation between the different departments of the city government.

The new council granted the Wisconsin Power company permission to extend gas mains along both sides of Racine street from Fourth to Sixth streets to replace a main under the pavement of Racine street. The request was made of the old council but was referred by that body to the incoming council.

The Story So Far: Loving another man, Judith Goodloe marries an outsider, Reuben Oliver, for his money, only to discover that his fortune is lost. But Reuben has made a settlement on her family, so she sticks to her bargain and accompanies him to a dismal mining town. Twins are born, and Reuben loses his job. At the lowest moment in walks wealthy, red-headed Cissy Rogers. She wants the same thing she has always wanted—Reuben.

Chapter 26

Cissy Works Fast

They sat on the low wooden steps that led to the kitchen. Reuben offered Cissy a cigarette, lighted it. Lit one for himself. "Talk, Cissy. How's Clem?"

"Dad's in Europe. He misses you Rube."

"I miss him."

"He thought you were a fool to come here in the first place. A worse one to stick."

"When he hears I can't even stick."

The strip of back yard with its dingy board fence swayed crazily. "Do you mean—you and—Judith?" He avoided her eyes. "I've lost my job!"

The back yard straightened itself. "There're other jobs. How hard have you looked?"

Why try to tell her of the endless miles of walking, of the stacks of letters he had written, of the advertisements he had answered? "I've looked too hard."

"Perhaps that's why."

"Necessity makes beggars of us."

"It never made one of you before." Through a cloud of grey smoke she studied his harassed expression. Could this be her eagle? "You're not the type to beg, Rube. You must challenge."

"That day is over."

In the excitement caused by Cissy's arrival Judith forgot about the letter to Gran until she was in bed. She was too tired to get up.

Early in the morning, when she slipped down to draw a light cover over the sleeping twins, Judith found each fat little fist tightly closed over a crisp $20 bill.

Humiliation stung her. Cissy knew their dire need. Cissy had eaten the stew with its sparse pieces of meat! She dared—

Then as she gently unfastened little fingers came sheer relief. Eighty dollars! Until this money was spent she would not have to write to Gran!

"I found the money, Cissy," Judith greeted her guest when she came strolling into the kitchen.

In Chinese pajamas of palest blue embroidered in gay butterflies, Cissy walked to the sink and turned on the water. "Is there any reason why I should not give Rube's kids a present?"

"There wouldn't be, if we didn't need money so badly."

"She has grit!" Cissy thought grudgingly. "Use the money and pay the youngsters back with interest when they're 21."

"That's what I intend to do. I wanted you to know."

Cissy's coming made a difference in the little house. She know, with

New London Man Offers Property For Use by City

Council Defers Action Pending Investigation Of Donation Details

New London — The bayou of the Embarrass river lying north and east of Waupaca and Shawano streets, respectively, was offered to the city of New London at the council meeting last night by the owner of the property, Edward Kalwitz, 336 Shawano street, through Attorney Francis A. Werner. Acceptance of the area for park purposes was deferred by the council pending investigation of requests governing the terms of the donation.

The land is offered to the city provided the area is used as a dumping ground and built up to serve as a levy against the flood waters of the Embarrass. Terms of the donation require that filling be started at the lowest end near the Green Bay and Western railroad tracks and a stretch be filled in parallel to Shawano street at the rear of the homes. The gift tract also includes a short strip at the south end to provide a connecting road with Shawano street. The levy at the back of the homes will be designed also for use as an alley.

Probable expense to the city in carrying out these requirements will be determined by the public property committee and acceptance will be considered at the next council meeting.

Mayor, Chief May Act

Regarding parking on North Water street opposite the dead end intersection with Lincoln street and granting of a no-parking place at the Cole brothers ice cream stand on S. Pearl street, City Attorney Giles H. Putnam reported that a city ordinance gives all authority for parking regulations to the mayor and chief of police. No action was taken on the two questions.

The street department was to begin today to clear the Hickey lot on North Water street for city parking purposes. The use of the lot has been granted the city provided it is filled in and cared for.

No action was taken on request of the decorations committee of the district music festivals to provide decorations and cross street banners for the events May 7 and 14. The committee asked for decorations costing $2 per lamp post and six street banners at $6 each. Mayor Wendtlandt reported that merchants and business men are supporting the venture in the amount of $160 and recommended the council appropriate $36 for the large banners.

Referred to Board

The opening of Jefferson street between Warren and Millard streets as requested by Giles H. Putnam, property owner, was referred to the board of public works for investigation. Putnam reported the street has been plotted but never opened.

The installation of water facilities around an entire block, from S. Pearl street around Cameron, Lawrence and Jennings streets was taken under consideration and set aside until the next meeting. The total project was estimated strongly to cost about $3,000. Only three blocks had been considered originally.

Two new ordinances were read for future action, one requiring a permit for the moving of buildings in the city and another defining the fire limits in the city and setting up building requirements to conform to fire regulations. The new fire limits would include all areas within the business and light or heavy industrial districts set up by the city zoning ordinance.

Grant Permit to Build New Bridge Over Wolf River

Expect Construction of Span at New London To Begin Soon

New London — A permit to construct a new bridge over the Wolf river at S. Pearl street has been granted by the United States War department, it was announced by engineers here yesterday. City Attorney Giles H. Putnam reported to the common council at its regular meeting last night. Preliminary legal work was launched by the council and it is expected that actual construction will be started as soon as possible.

The bridge will be a fixed span providing sufficient clearance for pleasure craft. Navigation on the Wolf river will be closed above the bridge. The new span will serve United States Highway 45 which passes through the city and will be constructed entirely of state and federal funds. The only cost to the city will be minor incidental expenses.

The finance committee of the city council was instructed last night to secure leases on the property adjacent to the bridge site to allow trespassing during construction work. Arrangements have been made to purchase the L. E. Freeman property at the southwest corner of the bridge. The frame structure now occupied by the E. J. Pelzer tailor shop will be removed.

It is understood that the state highway commission will advertise for bids for the construction immediately.

Elect Springmire Council President

Matt Clark Seated as Second Ward Alderman at Organization Session

New London—Lynn Springmire, alderman from the First ward, was reelected president of the new city council at its first meeting at the city hall last night. After allowing bills the old council adjourned sine die, reassembled and seated Matt Clark as alderman from the Second ward and proceeded with the business of reorganization.

Of the 10 votes cast, Springmire received seven on the first ballot, A. R. Margraff two and Harry Emans one. Albert Gesse was unopposed for reelection by the council as street commissioner for another year. Dr. F. J. Pfeifer was voted city health officer for two years over Dr. H. C. Schmallenberg in the second ballot, 6 to 4. The first vote cast was tied.

Springmire, Frank Meating and William Behm were renamed to the board of public works. Other standing council committees remaining intact are the board of health, Theodore Thomas, Harold Pieper, Dr. F. J. Pfeifer; license, William Litts, Harry Emans, Harry D. Macklin, chief of police; relief, Harry Emans, Theodore Thomas and M. J. Stewart, poor commissioner. Clark was named to the public property committee with Litts and Harold Pieper was transferred to the committee on finances and taxes with A. R. Margraff and Otto Stern.

A $10,000 bond of City Treasurer L. M. Wright for two years was approved.

A number of city officials were granted expenses to attend a meeting arranged by the League of Municipalities at Madison Friday afternoon. Tavern problems will be discussed and plans for the payment of taxes in installments will be explained. Those who plan to attend are City Attorney Giles H. Putnam, Treasurer L. M. Wright, and Aldermen Margraff, Pieper and Litts.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

keen satisfaction, that she put Judith at a disadvantage. The way Cissy could take hold, do housework, cook, clean—make it all appear astoundingly easy—was nothing less than a miracle. The savory dishes she could concoct out of a mere nothing.

The effect of the new routine, or rather of Cissy, upon Reuben was amazing. She put new hope into him. Despondency dropped gradually from him like a garment wearing threadbare in spots. He spoke cheerfully: "When I get my job—" or "Soon now I'll land something good!"

At night, when she put the children to bed, Judith left her husband and their guest playing checkers at the kitchen table, or talking about airplanes, lumber and whatnot.

"He should have married her," Judith thought with a curious detachment. "They speak the same language. Learned about Life in the same school. Certainly she loved him the day his horse threw him—"

The day his horse threw him! A dull pin scratched across the surface of Judith's heart. But for a fluke of chance Cissy would have married Reuben, eventually. She would never have come to Goodloe's Choice. Never have gone, colorful and gay as a humming bird, through the dim old garden taking Gary with her. Useless to remind herself that Gary hadn't loved her, that she would still be waiting—useless. Cissy had flown away with Gary then—not because she loved him, but to show her power. Cissy had been the serpent to enter Judith's Eden, then. Now—

Involuntarily her arm tightened around her sleeping children. This was her world and Reuben's. They must keep it revolving, keep it Safe! Reuben was hers—whether she loved him or not—he was hers.

"Cissy loves Reuben!" It buzzed in Judith's drowsy head like a bee. Cissy always beautifully groomed, perfumed, waved, manicured, jeweled—lighted the drab little house as a high powered electric bulb lights a cavern. She flattered Reuben. Hung on his every word. Catered to his every whim. Cissy was never cross, tired, untidy—

"Whatever started me on such a crazy line of thought? Cissy has no place in my life now, no place in Reuben's life."

Each night, undressing in a small, sloperoofed front bedroom, Cissy promised herself: "I'll go tomorrow." When tomorrow came: "It's too hot today—I'll go tomorrow."

She had moments when she despised herself. Moments of self justification too. "I've done him good—If he had never seen her—She doesn't love him—Her children fill her life — If I had a chance—"

And then an idea popped into Cissy's head like a flower in full bloom—a flower so heady it made her dizzy. She did have a chance—a slim one may be but worth trying. Stupid not to have thought of it before. If Gary still held the old fascination—If it worked out—

The following morning she went downstairs garbed for departure. "It's been glorious, darlings! I can hardly tear myself away."

"Why do it?" Reuben hated to see her go. Hated to go back to the old hopelessness; the old lapses into silence and apology. "Stay until tomorrow anyhow."

"Can't! I was due at the Curtis Ranch weeks ago."

"Where is that?" Judith asked idly.

"Just about four hours ride up the Sierras," Cissy informed her and added casually, "It's only 20 miles from one of the Galbreath camps!"

Judith caught her breath. The Galbreath camps—

"There might be work for you there, Rube," Cissy said, "You know lumber."

"A liability," Reuben said bitterly. "They took on a lot of green hands last month but turned me down."

"That was last month," Cissy outlined her lips with geranium red. "I'll nose in as I pass along and report to you."

From the water pipe gate they waived her down the narrow street.

"Emeralds Again"

Judith found the money under the comb tray—$100! Judith recoiled from it as from a serpent. It seemed her lot to be humiliated by Cissy! Cissy high-handedly leaving money under a tray as one leaves a tip for a maid! She hated Cissy—hated her, but most of all she hated Reuben! It was his fault. He had brought her to this pass!

In mid-afternoon the telegram came. Reuben read it incredulously. Reread it. From the foot of the ladder-like stairs he shouted: Judy—come running! Here's news!"

He couldn't wait until she came down to him. His voice boomed up to her. He read: "Report immediately to Forest Base Number 2. (Signed) Galbreath, Inc."

"That means a job, Judy. Can you take it in?"

She thought: "Cissy works fast."

With a light-heartedness that had not been his since the day the Lutie Justin failed he swept her into his arms.

"You'll be wearing your emeralds again before you know it, Judy! Gosh! If you knew what it means to have a chance to work again!"

Deliberately he refused to remember that Gary Brent would be his boss; that he would almost rather starve than work for him. It it wasn't for Judy and the kids—

"I've hated all this," his gesture included the whole of Fordney's Gulch, "for you, Judy. You've been a brick—" He released her suddenly remembering, "I'll have to hustle around and raise cash somehow. It's not going to be easy."

He rumpled his hair worriedly and looked so ludicrously like Judykin when she was getting ready to cry that the words were drawn from Judith against her own volition: "Cissy left $100."

"Good old Cissy!" gratefully, "she thinks of everything."

"She thinks of too much: I hadn't meant to tell you. Meant to send it right back—

"We've got to take it, Judy. Don't feel so badly over it. Cissy doesn't feel about that sort of thing as you do. Back in Warder we used to pool our resources in an old tin can on a shelf back of the kitchen stove. Everyone put in or took out according to his needs and no questions asked."

Whistling he dashed upstairs, got his pigskin bag from under the bed and started to throw his things into it. Years fell from him. The somberness left his eyes, a twinkle usurped its place. He reminded Judith of a small boy preparing for his first circus.

And then he was kissing the children goodby, kissing her, promising to write—He was going to work—going to the woods—to tall trees, leaping streams—

A rattle, a wheeze, the stench of motor exhaust, a cloud of dust—Reuben was gone—

(Copyright, 1938)

Tomorrow: Gary comes back into Judith's life.

It Is Said--

That two mothers were frantic over the disappearance of their little children yesterday until they found them safe and sound in the city clerk's office in the city hall, eating crackers and playing with toys. The 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hazelburg and the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Worm were found wandering on the main streets near the post office about 1 o'clock according to Mrs. J. C. Freeman, city clerk. Worried over the actions of the children, Mrs. Freeman sent Traffic Officer Larry Schetter after the youngsters. They weren't able to identify themselves and when they began to cry Mrs. Freeman took them to her office and quieted them with a lunch and some playthings. That's where they parents found them about 1:30. The tots were gone from home, since 12 blocks from the post office, since mid-forenoon.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York—(AP)—The stock market found a toehold for a rallying effort today after many shares had yielded one-third to one-half the April recovery gains.

Declines of fractions to more than a point, still ruled in the main list. But forenoon losses, running to more than 3 points in leading industrials, were cut down before the finish, more from an ebb in offerings than expansion in buying.

Aviation shares showed the way on the upside. A few gold stocks joined the advance. Steel, motor, farm implement, copper and other groups favored recently as "inflation" stocks found the uphill path slow going in face of poor business news and an urge in speculative camps to wait further developments in Washington on the spending-lending program.

Transactions approximated 800,000 shares.

Down most of the day were American Can, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, International Nickel, Consolidated Edison, Southern Pacific, American Smelting, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Chrysler and Texas Corp.

Light Selling Results In General Curb Drop

Edward Hart New Waupaca City Attorney; C. G. Hansen Alderman

Waupaca—At the regular meeting of the old council Tuesday night, the bills and pay rolls were allowed. The report of Police Justice Peter Holst was accepted, and the annual financial report of the park board was read and referred to the finance committee. The secretary of the park board, Theodore Peterson, reported receipts of $553.36 and disbursements of $425.-92, leaving a balance in the treasury of $127.46.

Following adjournment sine die and a short recess, the new council with Mayor Irvin Erickson presiding, continued the business session.

Nominations for an alderman from the Third ward to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Erickson to become mayor, were called for, and L. D. Seibert, newly elected alderman of the Third ward nominated Chris G. Hansen. The election of Mr. Hansen who has served as an alderman in the past was unanimous.

Willys Holmes, alderman of the First ward was elected president of the council and assumed that post during the appointments of the mayor, all appointments being confirmed by the council.

Attorney Edward Hart will succeed L. D. Smith as city attorney. Mr. Smith, after 28 years in that position, refused to consider the office again. L. A. Olson will become school commissioner for the Third ward for three years, and John Burnham will continue as member-at-large for three years. Dr. C. W. Andrews succeeds Dr. A. M. Christofferson as city health officer. Applications for position of Street Foreman were received from Elias Durrant, incumbent, Frank Weisenborn, Arthur Darrow, A. B. Jorgenson and Alden Dutton. These were referred to the board of public works with instructions to employ the one whom they consider best fitted for the work.

Chief of Police J. Paul Jones was retained and special police were named for the first three wards. One for the Fourth has not yet been named. For the First, Marion Olson; Second, Gordon Peterson, and Third E. P. Kissinger.

Committees Named

The following committees were named by the mayor, the first named to act as chairman:

Finance— Chris Hansen, George Freiberg, Claude Johnson.

Judiciary—Johnson, T. W. Davidson, Hansen.

Street and bridges— Davidson, Stanley Wetherbee, L. D. Seibert.

James Jensen was again named custodian of the city hall.

At the close of the business meeting "Tommy" Davidson, 84-year-old alderman of the Fourth ward congratulated the new mayor, saying it was the first time in the history of the city that the Third ward had a city official and this year there are two—the mayor and City Treasurer Carl J. Nelson.

Mayor Erickson expressed his pleasure at the "support and spirit of cooperation already accorded him by the new council," adding that while "they may not have faith in him, since he was untried, that the city was not, however, in the hands of hijackers, and that with "Tommy" as the "watch-dog of the council," he invited constructive criticism.

Further business in the hands of the council will be continued April 25.
